Making An Impact

A FOCUS ON YOUNG FARMERS

Positive Thinking Pays Off

CHARLENE M. SHUPP ESPENSHADE
Lancaster Farming Staff

Editor's note: "Making An Impact" is a series of features on young farmers who are creating their own success. This story focuses on a successful crop operation in Luzerne County. Future stories are scheduled on dairy, swine, and crop farmers in the southeast region of the state, in addition to state and regional programs affecting young and beginning farmers.

DRUMS (Luzerne Co.)— The power of positive thinking, hard work, dedication, and thoughtful planning are only a few of the words that could be used to describe Matt and Barb Balliet.

When looking around their property, it is hard to believe that only five years ago, they began the farm with 185 acres in Columbia County.

For 2004, the Ballets are preparing to raise wheat, soybeans, oats, hay, and corn on about 700 acres in Luzerne, Columbia, and Schuylkill counties.

Matt was graduated from Penn State, where he earned a degree in engineering. But it didn't take him long after his graduation to begin to feel the pull to farm.

"I worked in the construction industry for a year or two after college," said Matt. "I decided that I wanted to be back on a farm, and then I went to work for a grain farmer full time."

After working on the farm for four years, the Balliets decided to take the big step and go out on their own.

The USDA held the original farm in inventory. The Balliets made the decision to purchase the farm in 1997.

Barbara and Matt Balliet with their dog Bosco continue to build on the success of their operation using positive thinking. This Luzerne County couple established the farm in 1998 with 185 acres. Today, they farm about 700 acres.

"A lot of people don't want to spend the time going to meetings, like being involved in Farm Bureau, but it's part of doing business. It doesn't matter if you are a doctor and are part of a medical group or a contractor and are part of a home builders association, it's part of doing business."

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Farmers will likely remember 2003 as the year the drought ended.

Plentiful precipitation across the region, including a February blizzard and a September tropical storm, helped replenish low groundwater levels and bring high crop yields following a lengthy dry spell that ran from 2001 through late 2002.

According to the Pennsylvania state climatologist, the final counties in Pennsylvania were removed from drought watch status by June of this year.

Happy New Year!

FARMERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Some milder-than-usual temperatures make these cows act like it's summer, even when cold and brisk New Year's Day temperatures are usually what's in store. The photographer captured this scene last weekend at the corner of Cider Mill and Covered Bridge Road at Bitzers Mill/Eberlys Cider Mill Covered Bridge. Happy New Year, everyone!

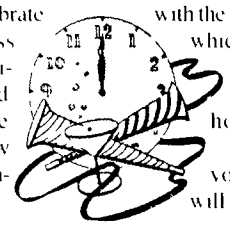
Happy New Year!

As technology and globalization have brought communities and nations together let us celebrate our New Year with a cross cultural nod to other traditions For example we could benefit from the Chinese custom of starting the new year free of debt The African-American Kwanzaa toast of 'Harambee says Let's all pull together In Scotland, the year starts with the ritual of first-footing in which the first person over the threshold brings a small gift for the household's good fortune Remember, what you do on January 1 you will do often



Spicy Chicken Tenders

OPINION

BSE In News

Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE) is once again in the news, but this time is not discovered in Canada, but here in the U.S.

Lancaster Farming learned Tuesday evening that USDA diagnosed a presumptive positive case of BSE in an adult Holstein cow in the state of Washington.

Why is BSE in this country?

Why, when feeding animal ruminant products is illegal in both the U.S. and Canada, we still have these BSE cases popping up?

BSE should have been eradicated a long time ago. Why do we still see it?

The USDA needs improved enforcement of the anti-animal ruminant legislation. An old saying still applies: DON'T MAKE ANY NEW LAWS UNLESS YOU CAN ENFORCE THEM.

And they should enforce them well. The fines, if necessary, should be excessive and jail time severe for feeding blood meal, bone meal, and those types of products.

Better yet, why doesn't USDA go on the attack regarding BSE actively seek out the agent, rather than having it come to them? Why not make BSE elimination THE mandate?

BSE is a public health problem. We need to have a secure food system.

Not only that, with BSE in the U.S., what will become of the stellar year for beef prices, of more than $100 CWT? The feeder cattle market could be in jeopardy if USDA doesn't act decisively.

Now Is The Time

To Celebrate The New Year With Your Family

The beginning of a New Year is a great time to stop and remember the blessing we have enjoyed in the past year. With the heavy demands of our work and busy family schedules, time for reflection is in short supply in our society.

This makes it all the more important to simply choose to set time aside to evaluate where we are and where we want to be. Each New Year's day we are given a reminder of how fast our life is moving. In my household, we are reminded by the fact that our first born will soon be graduating from college, representing a major transition in his and our lives. Life is short, so do your best to make the most of each opportunity with family, friends, and your community.

While you are reflecting on your past year's activities, evaluate with your family whether your business activities supported your family goals or made it hard to reach them. If the consensus is that changes are needed, begin to explore what alternatives are available that could better meet both your financial needs and your personal goals. If you have some ideas on new ventures you want to explore, seek some help in developing your plans.

There are two major trends in agriculture. One group of producers will be successful by seeking to be the low-cost producer of a particular commodity and produce it at a large scale. Another opportunity exists for those who seek to specialize in niche markets, where they will try to gain higher margins for a more specialized product. To be successful in that arena, one needs to understand marketing and how this is different from producing a commodity. See the article below for some thoughts on marketing.

In the meantime, start off the New Year by supporting the livestock and horticultural industries by enjoying a hearty meal of pork, sauerkraut, and mashed potatoes!

To Understand What Customers Want

James G. Beierlein, professor of agricultural economics at Penn State, tells us that until recently in agriculture, the demand for food seemed endless. Most people were thankful to find enough to eat. Because of this, marketing in agriculture focused on moving the most products through the system as efficiently as possible.

Customer needs did not really matter since people where just glad to get something. About the middle of the 20th century, supply caught and passed demand for most items in U.S. agriculture.

When this happened, what it took to be successful changed. Now customers had choices and did not have to settle for what they could find. Americans developed sophisticated tastes for exotic foods (ethnic foods), became more health conscious (cholesterol, fat, and so on), and used food to help express their social concerns (dolphin-safe tuna fish).

Producers also learned that customers were not in love with the products they buy but with the satisfaction received from the products they buy. If the food products are not prepared for sale in a way that helps them gain this satisfaction, they buy something else.

The beef industry has seen a rise in beef consumption recently. This increase comes in part from packaging beef in ready-to-eat forms that require just a quick warm-up in a microwave oven. Studies have shown that customers want meals that take less than 30 minutes from start to serve. No matter how great the meal is, if is it is not in the right form to meet the customers' needs, it does not sell.

Beierlein points out the marketing secret to better success is to focus on customer satisfaction, not on making a better product. This difference is important. Many businesses have failed because they focused on making a better product rather than remembering they are satisfying customer needs.

The proper marketing goal of every firm is to meet the needs of its customers more efficiently, effectively, and completely than its competitors. The level of their profit is directly related to how well they do this.

The profitable satisfaction of customer needs should be the driving force behind everything a business does. This approach will succeed when every part of the business accepts this notion. The biggest challenge is to accept this reorientation of the way your business looks at itself. The business should exist because it plays a role in the profitable satisfaction of it customers' needs. Everybody on your farm works in customer service. Your customers can buy from many sources — be sure you give them many reasons to buy from you by offering the right products, at the right price, and at the right time. If you don't, your competitors will.

Quote Of The Week:

"There is no institution more vital to our nation's survival than the American family. Here the seeds of personal character are planted, the roots of public virtue first nourished. Through love and instruction, discipline, guidance and example, we learn from our mothers and fathers the values that will shape our private lives and our public citizenship."

— Ronald Reagan

❖ Farm Forum ❖

Editor:

Farm families of Pennsylvania thank and applaud the General Assembly for passing legislation (House Bill 1222) on Dec. 18 that will discourage townships from adopting illegal farm ordinances.

The problem is that a few local officials have been legislating beyond their authority by adopting regulations that exceed existing state laws.

During the nearly three-year discussion of the problem by lawmakers and the public, the misrepresentation by a few groups of both the issue and the remedy has been disappointing.

Here are the facts. The legislation enables courts to require townships to pay a farmer's legal costs after challenging an illegal ordinance if the officials knowingly or recklessly violated state law when adopting it. Similarly, a farmer can be required to pay the township's legal fees if a lawsuit is found to be frivolous. What can be more fair and reasonable? Claims that the legislation removes or changes any

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

OUT OF THE MANGER

Background Scripture:
Luke 2:40-52.
Devotional Reading:
John 5:19-24.

You may be surprised to learn that the birth of Jesus was not celebrated in Christianity until at least 400 years after his birth, and then only in scattered locations.

The establishment of Easter preceded that of Christmas by several hundred years. Today, Christmas is by far the more popular Christian observance, although Easter remains the most important. The name "Christmas," a contraction of Christ's Mass, did not appear until the 12th century.

As Christians, we need to understand that both Christmas and Easter are part of a single life and cannot be fully understood and appreciated when separated. It is hardly a secret that some of us would like to focus solely on the birth of Jesus and keep him in the manger. That is partly because we know that the story of Jesus the adult is one of acceptance and rejection, acclaim and bitter opposition, loyalty and treachery — and Jesus died the death of what society would hold to be that of a defeated, discredited man.

Christmas, however, is not just a story that got off to a good start and then went bad. As Allan Hauck puts it, "In the total perspective, Calvary and Bethlehem complement each other. Calvary represents the fulfillment and the final goal of the Incarnation. The Cross is the reason for the Incarnation and the Cross would not have been possible without the Incarnation."

Out Of The Manger

Also, many of us would like to keep Christ in his manger because we have observed that, for some, the birth of a baby may be the highest moment in life.

Birth is a time of exultation and high hopes, many of which are never realized, and some of which are dashed in disappointment. In the minds of some, the trouble with kittens, puppies, and little babies is that they quickly grow up into cats, dogs, and human beings! Or, as one woman put it, "I love babies, but not children, especially when they grow into teen-agers."

None of us, however, can repeal the life cycle; much as we might like to, we cannot keep our babies from becoming children and growing up into adults. That is the way God designed us and Jesus was no exception. And, although we hold Jesus to be the Son of God, we must not rob his childhood and youth of his humanity. Jesus was not spared the trials and tribulations of childhood and adolescence because the light of God was shining deep within him.

He was not a god, nor even an adult human being, hiding in the body of a child and teen-ager. Before the New Testament was closed, there were many other competing writings circulating among the churches, including some apocryphal gospels glorifying Jesus with accounts of supernatural powers exercised by him even as a child. Fortunately, these gospels did not make the cut into canon. They would have distorted the humanity of Jesus — therefore his relevancy to us — for the sake of presenting Jesus as God in children's clothing, an interpretation renounced as heresy.

Listening And Asking

Johann Heinrich Hofmann's popular painting, "The Finding of Christ in the Temple," is a distortion of Luke's account, for it depicts the youthful Jesus standing erect in the midst of the elders gesturing as though he were teaching the teachers.

But in Luke 2:40-52 we see a more balanced depiction. Luke tells us that, when his family returned to Jerusalem seeking him, they found him "sitting among the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions" (2:46,47.)

Yes, the elders "were amazed at his understanding and his answers," and Mary was stunned by his response to her and Joseph, but the picture Luke paints for us is that of an open-minded youth, respectful of the teachers in the temple courtyard, and yet enough of an adolescent to confound his parents. It was as a real child and youth that "Jesus increased in wisdom and in stature, and in favor with God and man" (2:52).

EDITOR'S NOTE Due to changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003

During November, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 11 66 billion pounds, down 0 2% from November 2002 The following are the November-to- November changes for selected states Texas 8 9%, Vermont -1 9%, New York - 3 3%, Kentucky -6 6%, Florida 7 1%, Pennsylvania -7 9%, and Virginia -8 8%

This week's news of an Italian dairy conglomerate's financial problems is causing some concerns for buyers and suppliers to that company's plants in North America This week, milk production continues to increase in the Southeast and holding about steady in the Northeast Following typical patterns, surplus milk supplies are increasing in all areas Bottlers' need for milk is off significantly now that most schools are on vacation Manufacturing plant contacts report a sharp increase in receipts, but little trouble in handling all the extra milk This year's volumes are welcomed, but reported as lighter than last year's Some milk that normally gets shipped to the Southeast is staying "up north" during the holidays Florida's need for milk is more than satisfied by in-state production and handlers had to ship milk out of state to find manufacturing capacity This too is typical for this time of year Contacts report that pre-planning the holiday milk disposition is really helping ease the situation as long as there are no major plant problems

The condensed skim market is weaker as supplies increase and demand eases This does tend to push more skim to local dryers

The fluid cream market is weak A very quick turn around in the marketplace was expected and it did materialize Early last week, the cream market was still firm, but demand has come to screeching halt and supplies are now approaching burdensome proportions Class II demand is very slow as many buyers have closed their plants until after the new year Many ice cream plants are down for the two-week holiday period, but a few are still operating and taking advantage of all the available cream Spot prices are mixed Multiples are sharply lower but the CME butter average last week did jump more than 12 cents Some buyers (mostly churns) are buying cream based on date of shipment or this week's average Production of holiday items like egg nog, bottled cream sour cream, and dips have slowed sharply now that most orders have been filled Churning activity is heavier and more excess cream is moving to the Midwest

A Viable Alternative To Large Tank Spreaders

A low compaction, high volume method of applying liquid manure on less than ideal ground conditions while also reducing odor.

Stanley Burkholder
Chambersburg, PA

Park your Hard Hose Drag Reel in the center of the field the manure is to be applied in Uncoil the hard hose pulling towards the farthest corner Simply drag the hose back and forth across the field until the whole field has been covered When finished unhook the applicator from the hard hose and wind in the hose

High volume: Flow rates possible that are equal to (3) 6,300 gal. spreaders @ 3 loads per hour each!

Low compaction: Nothing heavier than a 150 hp tractor is ever in the field!

Reduced odor: When used in conjunction with an Aerway soil aerator, odor is virtually eliminated.

Complete system w/4.5" x 1320' drag hose, 3-pt. spray boom, 3,000' of 6" supply line, manure irrigation pump and 12' Aerway incorporator is currently available for demo/rental/sale

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
December 19, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Dec. 19 — Total Receipts 298,500, last week 412,900, last year 345,900 Direct 41,800, last week 57,700, last year 53,500 Video/Internet none, last week 32,000, last year 500 Auctions 256,700, last week 323,200, last year 291,900 This week's reported auction volume included 39 percent over 600 lbs and 43 percent heifers Compared to last week, feeder cattle and calves sold mostly steady across the nation with instances of 1.00-2.00 lower on light pre-holiday receipts

Most of the weakness was posted on heavy calves and lighter yearlings weighing from 600-750 lbs, each of which need to go straight to the feedlot but will not finish before summer Some firmness was noted on heavy yearlings that will be done in early spring and flyweight calves (under 500 lbs) that have plenty of marketing options

Southeastern auction market receipts were extremely light and demand was spotty as some order buyers scrambled early in the week to put loads together and other shippers didn't even want to take the chance and end up holding stale cattle over the holidays

Receipts were heavier in the Plains and Midwest as weather conditions were much better as some producers wanted to sell before most auctions take a two week hiatus This week's sellers were either hitting a good weather window or moving cattle off short-dry wheat

Demand was fairly good from feedlot buyers but sharp losses in the fed cattle arena kept any feeder market rally in check Showlists were sold 4.00-6.00 lower at mostly 92.00 as packers pushed the issue to get prices more in line with dressed beef prices Cattle feeders didn't have to sell, but holiday slaughter schedules will be much shorter for the next two weeks plus off wheat and calf arrivals are cramping pen space in some areas

Most industry members were on the edge of their seats for this Friday's cattle on feed report On-feed numbers were within expectations but placement and marketing figures were bullish As expected the lightweight cattle made up a larger number on-feed than usual with weights under 600 lbs being 15 percent higher than last year (heavier weight groups were all roughly 7-10 percent lower) Placements were slightly lighter than expected with 97 percent of last year's total being put on feed in November and 89 percent of 2002's numbers were sold in November, which was significantly higher than most analysts had projected

It's hard to say if this report will help cattle markets before Christmas, after Christmas, or at all At least the data will help cattle feeders get through the holidays with a positive outlook

All of us with Federal-State Livestock and Grain Market News wish all of you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Professor of Agricultural Economics, Dairy Marketing and Policy
Penn State

Dec. 20, 2003
MOLDOVAN REPORT NUMBER 1

Greetings from Moldova! I'm in a tiny country in Eastern Europe. Moldova was a small part of the former Soviet Union and bordered the USSR and the Warsaw Pact countries. It's a lot like Pennsylvania and Maryland, with rolling hills and farm fields.

Moldova's main agricultural produces are milk, fruits and vegetables, and wine. I'm here working with the Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs (CNFA) as a U.S. volunteer. Their work is funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

My job is to review financial plans with five new cooperatives. Four of these are dairy cooperatives. And, by the end of the assignment, we'll bring these five cooperative leaders together and have a seminar to discuss their futures.

The first day of my assignment I headed back to the village of Ignatei. I worked in this same village a year ago. Ignatei is a two-hour drive north of the capital city of Chisinau. I met with coop manager Vasilii Gheorghia and compared their progress over the past year to the business plan we prepared last December. To my surprise, they had achieved nearly all their goals!

First, they installed a new compressor for their milk cooling tank. The old one kept breaking down, resulting in milk spoilage. Second, they increased milk procurement by about 20 percent. While the co-op did not make a lot of money over the past year, their financial status is stable and the villagers were able to earn some money. Ignatei is a very poor village and any business that helps them generate cash is very much appreciated.

Life in the village is very difficult compared to living in the capital city. Last December I was very uncomfortable living in the village, since Moldova experienced record cold temperatures. This year it is much warmer. But with the warmth brings new challenges: mud! And mud is something that all farmers hate. There are no paved roads in the village and it makes walking from one place to another difficult.

I stayed with Vascilii's family again this year and it was fun to catch up with them. Their son and daughter-in-law had a new baby, and their first born son is growing rapidly. That night we had a very nice meal together: farm-grown duck, barley, canned tomatoes, feta cheese, and of course, homemade wine. Moldovans are very proud of their wines.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

property was long and frustrating, taking a year and a half to secure the loan.

"It took us 18 months to purchase the farm — from the time that we saw it to the time we made contact, until we got (USDA) to put it on the market and secure the financing," said Matt.

Matt also noted he spoke to 17 different banks before one would speak to him about a farm loan, because many of the larger banks have a no agriculture loan policy.

While financing the farm was challenging, the Balliet's greatest challenge came after making the fateful decision to invest into the equipment to become self-sufficient in 1999.

The Balliets installed this grain drying system in 1999, just before the drought of that year. Photos by Charlene Shupp Espenshade

They installed a grain drying system to store grain during harvest, allowing the Balliets to concentrate on harvest and not have to move the grain until they are done.

"That was one of the hardest things for us. In '98 I was still working. I had all of my fieldwork custom hired. In '99, I went 100 percent on my own. We borrowed the money and bought all of our equipment, put the grain system in, got the trucks, and bought a combine. After we got the grain system in, it really hit home. Because we were so busy (getting everything in), it did not really hit home how hard the drought was going to be, until then. That was a bad year to spend all of that money."

Despite the drought, the Balliet's investment into equipment

ACT NOW.

Lower input costs. Reduce field stress. Immediate cash return.

In tough economic times the Outback S is widely recognized as the ideal tool to reduce input costs through better driving accuracy. On a 1,500 acre farm with $250,000 in annual inputs, a simple 1% increase in driving accuracy will return $2,500 in savings. Now do the math on a 5% increase in driving accuracy. It's all possible with the Outback S — but only if you ACT NOW.

The Outback S will be one of the quickest returns on investment you'll ever experience.

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Messick Farm Equipment Inc. will exhibit more than 30 pieces of farm equipment in its largest display ever at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, according to Jay Gainer, general manager.

Messick will combine its exhibitor space with that left open by New Holland North America, Inc. who will not be represented at the show this year. However, Messick will be displaying numerous New Holland machines, including a brand new combine and a self-propelled forage harvester.

New Holland's line of hay equipment will be well represented. Visitors can expect to see different types of balers, mowers, and other haymaking equipment.

A new model subcompact tractor from New Holland is to be unveiled at the Farm Show, in its "first show anywhere," Gainer said. The rest of New Holland's line of tractors will also be on display.

Other equipment at the Messick exhibition will include a Case-IH tractor and skid loader, Newton Crouch stainless steel lime and fertilizer spreader, and a new sprayer and new folding rotary rake from Miller Pro.

NCFC Applauds USDA Grants For Market Development

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) commended Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman for announcing more than $28.7 million in grants awarded through the Rural Business-Cooperative Service value-added agricultural product market development program. Over 180 grants in 40 states were made, including many to farmer cooperatives.

"This grant program has been a proven success in terms of helping farmers and their cooperatives capitlize on value-added business opportunities and capture a greater share of the value of their production beyond the farm gate," said Terry Barr, interim president of NCFC. "Farmers today face many economic challenges; strengthening their ability to join together in cooperative self-help efforts is essential to any long-term solution."

The program allows farmer cooperatives, among other eligible participants, to qualify for up to $500,000 in matching grants for feasibility studies and other initiatives, including capital for establishing alliances or business ventures, such as energy, agri-marketing, and value-added processing.

Positive Thinking

and a grain drying system was a good one, bringing the Balliets independence on when they decide to sell their grain and relieve the pressure to move the grain to market while still harvesting.

Because of the difficult weather they have faced over the years, the Balliets invest in crop insurance.

"I hate the thought of living on crop insurance, but with the weather the last few years, we don't have any choice. After last year's drought, 2002 was absolutely terrible for us, and if it were not for crop insurance, we wouldn't be here today."

In addition to crop insurance, the Ballets installed water pivots that can irrigate 70 acres.

When asked on what advice he would give to young people looking into farming, Matt noted it was important not to lose heart.

"There are a lot of discouraging people out there," said Matt. "We've had some people around us that have been a big help. But there are a lot of people out there who are real discouraging.

"If you're going to do it, you have to do it 110 percent and you can't go halfway. Whether it's borrowing the money to get started, you might as well do it and do it right off the bat. It's not easy, but it is not going to be all uphill," said Matt.

The Balliets are also grateful for the Farm Bureau's young farmer and rancher program. It provides them with the oppertunities to see other young farmers.

"In an area here where ag is pretty much on a downhill slide because of development pressure, it lets us go places and see there is somebody else our age farming," said Matt.

The Balliets believe that meeting people at state and national Farm Bureau events is a great experience.

"You can talk to people our age from all around the country,

Last year the Balliets installed two center pivots to irrigate 70 acres. They installed this system in preparation for a drought year.

"If you're going to do it, you have to do it 110 percent and you can't go halfway. Whether it's borrowing the money to get started, you might as well do it and do it right off the bat. It's not easy, but it is not going to be all uphill."

2003: A Year Of Big Changes

The wet weather brought planting and harvesting challenges as farmers scrambled to get seeds in the ground between showers, and later contended with soggy harvest conditions. High winds also complicated harvest, with Tropical Storm Isabel flattening cornfields in some areas.

Meanwhile, farm milk prices began to climb out of a long slump, market cattle prices broke records, and fourth quarter egg prices rose to about 70 percent higher than a year ago.

A lot happened in the public agriculture arena this year as well.

Following are some month-by-month highlights:

January

The much heralded 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show was launched in the newly expanded facility. An estimated 800,000-900,000 people attended the weeklong expo, which offered new incentives for the agricultural community, including three Farmer Days.

During the Farm Show, new Governor Ed Rendell announced Dennis Wolff, a dairy farmer from Columbia County, as the state's new secretary of agriculture. Wolff pledged to work for the well-being of all Pennsylvania farmers.

February

Country of Origin Labeling (COOL) became a hot topic locally, as cattle feeders met with a USDA representative in Lancaster to discuss the issue.

"True Security" was a theme at the annual Pennsylvania Association of Sustainable Agriculture conference. Keynote speaker Mark Ritchie spoke on the insecurities created by the loss of small farms and local food supplies in the U.S.

Presidents' Day brought the biggest snowfall in years to the region, with accumulations ranging from 20-30 inches. Volunteers gathered at the Jonas Glick farm, Leola, to quickly rebuild a dairy barn roof that collapsed from the snow. Milk haulers throughout the area worked overtime to service farms and get the product delivered.

After the President's Day snow blizzard in February, more than 50 volunteers gathered quickly to rebuild the dairy barn roof on Jonas Glick's farm, Leola. The roof collapsed when snow from the higher roof slid onto the lower one, which was already weighted with snow. The cows "all walked out with scratches," Glick said.

At its annual convention, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association inducted Ray and Barbara McMillan and Harold and Lena Umble into the Pennsylvania Holstein Hall of Fame.

March

Lancaster Farming published a report from Cattle-Fax, a market analysis and and information organization from Denver, Colo. which predicted fed cattle prices in 2003 would average $73-$74 per hundredweight, about $6 per hundredweight higher than in 2002.

The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council conducted its annual conference featuring the Roche brothers of Ireland. The Roches spoke about grazing and forage systems in Ireland and New Zealand.

The Pennsylvania Beef Expo in State College included one of the largest junior shows in the history of the expo.

April

A conference in Harrisburg outlined ways to prevent agroterrorism. Penn State student Jennifer Flinchbaugh gave a presentation, noting that the purposeful introduction by terrorists of harmful organisms to livestock and/or the food supply is "a distinct possibility."

Penn-Mar Ethanol, LLC announced plans to begin building a facility in southcentral Pennsylvania to produce about 50 million gallons of ethanol from corn.

The Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors gathered in Hershey for its annual convention, which included a presentation by attorney Charles Zaleski. Zaleski told the group that townships must allow for large-scale agricultural enterprises in comprehensive plans.

The possibility of building a biodiesel plant in the area was brought to light by leaders of the Regional Economic Development District Initiative based in Harrisburg. The group conducted meetings in Berks and Adams counties to gather farmer input on the idea.

Terry Barr, chief economist with the National Association of Farm Cooperatives, told farm credit company officers and ag industry representatives at a conference in Harrisburg that dairy processors will need to work together to "counterweigh what's happening on the retail side" through giants such as Wal-Mart.

Pennsylvania secretaries of agriculture and environmental protection Dennis Wolff and Kathleen McGinty, respectively, met at an ag forum to discuss agricultural and environmental issues and how their two departments can cooperate to promote environmental stewardship in the state.

The Pennsylvania State Grange conducted its annual legislative luncheon under the banner of "Grange Month," designated as April by the Rendell Administration and the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

May

East Cocalico Township near Ephrata proposed to drill a test well on the Paul B. Zimmerman farm, which is part of a 500-acre Ag Security Area. Zimmerman and neighbors opposed the township's plans. After drilling, and attempting twice to determine if the well could produce a suitable public water supply, the township said this fall that it was abandoning the site.

Canada announced the discovery of bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE), also known as mad cow disease, in a single cow in Alberta. U.S. cattle organizations worked quickly to assure the country that the domestic beef supply was safe, and officials closed the border to Canadian cattle and ruminant meats.

Dairy producers learned about CWT (cooperatives working together), a voluntary plan created by the National Milk Producers Federation to reduce cow numbers and the nation's milk supply in an effort to improve milk prices on the farm. The plan met with considerable opposition and was eventually scaled back to about one third of the original scope hoped for by planners.

Pennsylvania Ag Secretary Dennis Wolff announced the appointment of a new Farm Show team, consisting of Bill Wehry, deputy secretary; Edward Nielsen, Farm Show director; and Larry Weaver, chief of show management.

June

June Dairy Month featured stories of dairy farmers who have found ways to remain successful despite record-low milk prices.

A hog farming summit in Gettysburg drew a diverse crowd, from environmental activists led by Robert F. Kennedy Jr., to pastured pork producers, direct marketers, and large-scale hog producers. Meanwhile, a proposed hog finishing operation created controversy in southern York County, as neighbors aired concerns about possible odor emissions.

Controversy continued over Country of Origin Labeling (COOL) legislation for ag products, mandated by U.S. Congress in the 2002 Farm Bill. About 150 people, representing most commodity groups, gathered in Lancaster for a meeting on the issue led by William Sessions, deputy administrator with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. Thirty speakers gave a diversity of opinions, for and against the legislation.

International Harvester enthusiasts gathered in Bloomsburg for the 14th Annual Red Power Roundup.

The National Holstein Convention took place in Winston Salem, N.C.

Bloomsburg, was announced as the new Pennsylvania State FFA president.

July

A judge from the 8th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals (South Dakota) upheld an earlier ruling that the beef checkoff is unconstitutional.

Lancaster Farming congratulated 16 dairy farms from across the Pennsylvania for being chosen 2003 Dairy of Distinction winners.

August

Ag Progress Days at Rockspring highlighted forest products, as well as its usual wide range of farm equipment and other agricultural innovations.

The Ontario Minister of Agriculture Helen Johns met with Pennsylvania Ag Secretary Dennis Wolff and Pennsylvania ag organizations to ask for support in allowing trade to return to normal as soon as possible. Canadian cattle exports have been curtailed by border closings after the BSE was discovered in a cow in Alberta in May.

The PDA and Penn State unveiled the Samuel E. Hayes Livestock Evaluation Center during a ceremony at the new facility near Rockspring. The building was named for the former secretary of agriculture, who helped spearhead the project.

Dr. John Enck, executive director of the Pennsylvania Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission, told the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Comittee that the state's animal diagnostic labs need major funding, equipment, and staff updates in order to "have a chance fighting disease" in the event of an agroterrorism attack.

Pennsylvania conservation leaders announced the doubling of acreage eligible for the conservation reserve enhancement program (CREP) in the state.

About 25,000 acres of corn in Lancaster County were hit hard by winds from Tropical Storm Isabel, with an additional 97,000 acres suffering estimated yield losses averaging about 15 percent, according to Bob Anderson, Lancaster County crops agent. While Isabel affected a wide area in the region, in Pennsylvania southeastern counties and areas in Mifflin County reported some of the worst crop damage.

The All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg announced Hermitage Conciller Sheba, a 5-year-old Jersey from Waverly Farm, Clearbrook, Va., as supreme champion.

Ag lender Wachovia announced its plans to exit the ag loan business in Pennsylvania and Delaware.

October

During the Keystone International Livestock Exhibition in Harrisburg, longtime banker Mike Firestine was named to the Pennsylvania Livestock Association Hall of Fame.

Coordinators reported that a corn harvest aid effort played a big part in helping farmers in Lancaster and Chester counties get their crop in after winds from Tropical Storm Isabel made many fields difficult or impossible to harvest with a binder.

Leaders from the Pennsylvania departments of agriculture and environmental protection launched the Water Resources Planning Act.

Bryan Swistock, water resources specialist with Penn State cooperative extension said 2003 will go down in history as the wettest year on record for most of the state, with an average 23 inches of rainfall recorded during the four-month period of May through August.

About 170 people gathered in Lancaster for a raw milk informational meeting, which included speakers from Wisconsin, California, and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

2003: A Year Of Big Changes

Major agriculture trends discussed at an ag issues forum in Lancaster included consolidation, globalization, governance, niche markets, technology, and public influence.

Margaret Tau of Crawford County was named 2003 Granger of the Year at the Pennsylvania State Grange's All-Granger Banquet in Exton.

November

Javier Moreno became the first individual with a native language other than English to be named National FFA President. A native of Puerto Rico, Moreno had moved to Lebanon County in 2000, where he was hosted by the Bill and Deb Lovett family and attended Northern Lebanon High School as a senior.

Lancaster County Cooperative Extension announced the hiring of Dr. Kenneth Griswold as a new dairy agent, replacing Glenn Shirk.

Pennsylvania Granger Bill Steel was elected National Grange Master.

Farmers prepared to cope with Pennsylvania nutrient management law changes, with new phosphorus regulations and other changes expected to be finalized in 2004. The issues were examined in a two-part series in Lancaster Farming Nov. 15 and 22.

Don Robinson, administrator of the Lancaster County Conservation District, announced his plans to retire at the end of the year.

At its annual meeting, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau honored Sam Hayes with the Distinguished Service to Agriculture Award.

The Pennsylvania House of Representatives rejected H.B. 66, a bill that would remove agricultural use restrictions on 22.7 acres in Warren County, allowing a Wal-Mart to be built. The vote was reversed in December, and also passed the Senate.

Milk price (statistical uniform price) in the Northeast was reported at $14.95 per hundredweight. The Class III (milk used for cheese) price was $13.47 per hundredweight, compared to $9.84 per hundredweight in November 2002.

December

Pennsylvania General Assembly passed House Bill 1222, a resurrected version of last year's Senate Bill 1413. The legislation will allow courts to require townships to pay a farmer's legal costs after challenging an ordinance if it is determined that the officials knowingly or recklessly violated state law when adopting it.

BSE is reported in a dairy cow in Washington state.

On May 9, the newspaper hosted the Penn State Capitol Region Dairy Team at the Lancaster Farming office.

Northeast Order Uniform Milk Price For November

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Federal Milk Marketing Order, has announced that the statistical uniform price (SUP) paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order during November 2003 is $14.95 per hundredweight ($1.29 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The producer price differential (PPD) portion of the SUP for November is $1.48 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD ($1.48) combined with the corresponding month's Class III price ($13.47) equals the SUP ($14.95).

The SUP represents a benchmark minimum price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for farm milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The actual price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the composition of a farm's milk differs from the component benchmarks. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool. The PPD is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components and is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant(s). The SUP and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the further away the plant(s) receiving the producers' milk is from Suffolk County, Mass.

The Class prices for milk pooled in November are as follows: Class I, $17.62 (Suffolk County, Mass); Class II, $10.99; Class III, $13.47; and Class IV, $10.30. Comparable prices for November 2002 were: Class I $13.85, Class II $11.26, Class III $9.84, and Class IV price $10.58. The component values for November 2003 are protein, $2.9267 per pound; butterfat, $1.2877 per pound; other solids, $0.0368 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.6663 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 1.860 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 47.3 percent of producer milk receipts. The Class I utilization was 47.2 percent in November 2002.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 18.1 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 27.2 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 7.4 percent of the total.

Positive Thinking

and it seems no matter who you talk to, all of our problems are the same. The one-on-one contacts we have made with Farm Bureau and the people we've met— that's been one of the biggest advantages for us."

He also believes good business planning includes meetings such as Farm Bureau. While he notes that it is challenging for young farmers to get off of the farm, he encourages them to take time to do so.

"A lot of people don't want to spend the time going to meetings, like being involved in Farm Bureau, but it's part of doing business. It's doesn't matter if you are a doctor and are part of a medical group or a contractor and are part of a home builders association, its part of doing business."

The past five years have been successful overall for the Balliets, but one thing is clear — no matter how successful the year may be, they keep looking to expand and for new ideas to increase their profitability.

The Balliets are constantly looking for opportunities to expand their land holdings. In the outskirts of Hazleton, that can be challenging, because of the development pressure they constantly feel.

"We've expanded from 185 acres tillable, and this last year we just farmed more than 500 acres. And I have almost 200 additional acres under contract for next year," said Matt.

The Balliets strive to increase their tillable acres to offset the farm's equipment expense.

"We want to keep expanding the grain operation. But, we have also branched out into two other areas. We have a small herd of beef steers that we have custom butchered," said Matt. "I definitely want to expand on that— I have more customers than animals right now."

Balliet said, "Last year, after the drought we installed two center pivots. We now have about 70 acres of the home farm under irrigation. We're looking at some vegetable contacts and things like that. Things (contracts) that are a little bit more profitable to put under the pivots."

In addition to finding new marketing ideas, the Balliets invest into stewardship of the land. To date, they are in the process of installing or rebuilding five miles of terraces and diversion ditches through an USDA-EQIP contract. Balliet has also made use of his engineering skills to convert his corn planter to no-till.

"I'm glad we did it (switched to no-till). We are 100 percent no-till with all of the grains," said Matt. "I don't think without no-tilling we would have ever gotten done this spring."

The Pennsylvania Game Commission is working with the Balliets to install deer fencing on the farm's state gameland border, hoping to alleviate some of the deer damage.

While the Balliets are a unique farm operation, starting from nothing and building the business on their own, they see that they are in a larger minority of agriculture as young farmers.

The face of agriculture is changing, as Matt points out. As he looks about, he sees farmers getting older. He noted that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and other organizations need to look at ways to make agriculture more profitable to attract a younger generation.

"You are not going to attract people that have the ability to farm into businesses that are not able to be profitable, no matter how hard they work," said Matt.

Lehigh County Conservation District Presents Awards

FOGELSVILLE (Lehigh Co.) — The Lehigh County Conservation District presented its Annual "Outstanding Conservation Farmer of the Year" and "Outstanding Conservation Educator of the Year" awards for 2003 on Dec. 12.

The Conservation District chose the Lynnacres Farm, New Tripoli, operated by the widow and children of the late Russell Dietrich, as its 2003 Conservation Farmer of the Year.

Mr. Brian Campbell of the KidsPeace Washington School, has been chosen as the 2003 Conservation Educator of the Year.

Lynnacres Farm is a dairy and cash grain operation. Lynnacres first became a district cooperator back in 1964 when the late Russell Dietrich signed the first conservation agreement. Today, the family, including Elaine and their three children, William, Brian, and Robin Rassler, operate 1,074 owned and rented acres and care for 400 head of cattle. They participate in various conservation cost-share programs, such as the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP), Ducks Unlimited, and Growing Greener Program. In 2002, they completed a project which included 4800 feet of streambank fencing, one stabilized cattle crossing and two watering troughs, all to protect the headwaters of the Kistler Creek. In 2003, they completed a 1997 EQIP contract. They currently have 127.4 acres under a perpetual conservation easement.

Campbell has displayed a sincere, focused, and dedicated interest to educate our youth about the importance of our natural resources.

With Campbell's guidance, the students are focusing on improving the local soil and water resources in numerous ways. The students have learned how to handle stream restorations and regularly monitor those streams to determine stream health. With their newly acquired knowledge of wetlands, the students will soon design and undertake a major wetlands restoration project at the Orchard Hills Campus. In addition, students are preparing for the 2004 Lehigh County Envirothon, which serves as the first stage of environmental conservation and stewardship through education adn awareness.

Finally, A State Budget

million for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Also, Penn State extension sees its funding restored to last year's levels.

Rendell signed a package of bills to implement a balanced state budget with new revenue that will stabilize the state's finances during the next fiscal year.

The budget provides a down payment of $258 million in education funding for proven programs that will increase achievement statewide and strategies that help all students comply with federal No Child Left Behind standards.

The Basic Education, Vocational Education and Special Education subsidies are all increased by at least 2.9 percent, totaling about $150 million in additional core operating funds for school districts. The legislation also allocates $4.6 million to help pay school districts for the financial impact of the delayed state payment for education.

In addition, the budget includes funds to restore or avoid many of the budget cuts enacted in March and to protect access to health care by relieving physicians of extraordinary medical malpractice insurance costs.

Bills signed to implement the budget are House Bills 44, 172, 200, 1133 and 1589 and Senate Bill 80.

Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff is happy about the outcome.

"I am pleased with the final budget for the Department of Agriculture. We have been allocated more than $210 million to improve and develop our programs in an effort to support the agriculture community. Included in the total are federal monies in the amount of $27,403,000," Wolff said.

Highlights of the 2003-04 agricutlure budget include an additional $1 million to supplement essential crop insurance programs, Penn State Cooperative Extension funding restored to last year's funding levels, $1 million to be transferred from the department s farm operations account to the State Farm Show Products Show Fund, and the increase in plum pox virus programs of $788,000 for a total of $1 million for the year.

Dairy Workshops To Teach Solid Decision Making

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Every decision made in a business impacts its profit margin in multiple ways. This is particularly true of dairy farms, where daily decisions can have far-reaching effects on the farm's profitability.

Dairy Alliance is helping producers learn how to manage a variety of risks and improve their financial stability through a new program called Profit Manager, to be conducted at three sites across Pennsylvania during January.

"Implementing a systems approach to decision-making will enable dairy producers to control risk and reduce the volatility of profit margins," explained Bradley Hilty, information specialist with Penn State Dairy Alliance. "Participants in the Profit Manager workshops will focus on the interaction of the feeding and milk production systems with milk marketing, and learn how management of each can impact the profit margin of their business."

A number of Penn State Cooperative Extension faculty and staff will instruct the program. They include Kenneth Bailey, associate professor, agricultural economics and rural sociology; Bradley Hilty; Lisa Holden, associate professor, dairy and animal science; Virginia Ishler, nutrient management specialist, Dairy Alliance; and Richard Stup, human resource specialist, Dairy Alliance. In addition, a member of Downes-O'Neil brokerage firm, Chicago, Ill., will participate.

For producer convenience, the program will be take place at three sites: Jan. 13-14 at the Holiday Inn Harrisburg/Hershey; Jan. 20-21 at the Ramada Inn, Altoona; and January 27-28 at The Lighthouse Restaurant, Chambersburg.

Cost is $125 per person; $65 for each additional person per farm. The fee includes lunch and dinner on the first day, lunch on the second day, and all program materials.

Advance registration is required. To register, contact Michele Moyer, Dairy Alliance program manager, at (814) 865-4682 or (888) 373-7232, or via e-mail at HYPERLINK "mailto:mcm14@psu.edu" mcm14@psu.edu.

The deadline to register for the first session (Jan. 13-14) is Dec. 23.

From Dec. 24 through Jan. 4, registration for the second session (Jan. 20-21) and third session (Jan. 27-28) may be e-mailed or faxed to the above numbers. Phone registrations for these sessions will resume on Jan. 5.

Mid-Atlantic Fruit, Vegetable Convention Theme: 'Charting Your Course For 2004'

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Fruit and vegetable growers from throughout the mid-Atlantic region and beyond will be gathering here at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center Jan. 27-29 for the 2004 Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention.

About 2,000 persons are expected for the annual event that has become recognized as one of the premier fruit and vegetable grower meetings in the Northeast. The theme for this year's event is "Charting Your Course for 2004."

The convention has been jointly sponsored by the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, the Maryland State Horticultural Society, and the New Jersey State Horticultural Society for the past 26 years. Pennsylvania State University, University of Maryland, and Rutgers University Cooperative Extensions all assist in organizing the educational sessions as well.

The Great American Hall at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center will host the Trade Show with more than 130 exhibitors. Specialized horticultural equipment, farm market merchandise, and packaging will all be on display along with information on the latest seed varieties, fruit varieties, pesticides, and other supplies and services for the commercial grower.

Six or more concurrent educational sessions will be offered on all three days of the convention. The following full-day sessions are planned for the first day: tree fruits, season extension technology, basic vegetable production school, and wine grapes. Half-day sessions on wholesale marketing, peaches, labor and legal issues, beans, vine crops, asparagus, and peppers will be offered. On the second day, full-day sessions on peaches, tree fruits, direct marketing, water use issues, tomatoes (fresh market and processing), and potatoes will be featured. Also scheduled are half-day sessions on small fruit and pumpkins.

The convention will close on the third day with full-day sessions on tree fruits, small fruit, sweet corn, bedding plants, and cut flowers. Half-day sessions on specialty vegetables and value-added vegetables will also be offered.

Many pesticide applicator update training credits are available to growers attending the sessions. The program covers nearly every aspect of fruit, vegetable, potato, wine grape, and small fruit production. Commercial growers should not pass up this educational opportunity.

On Jan. 27, fruit and vegetable growers will be treated to a reception followed by the annual Fruit and Vegetable Growers Dinner. The dinner will include awards, recognitions, and entertainment. On Jan. 28, the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association will each sponsor evening receptions for growers. The processing tomato growers with the highest yields for the 2003 season will be honored at the annual Tomato Awards Luncheon on Jan. 28.

For more information on the fruit program and registration, contact:

• Maureen Irvin, State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania, (717) 677-4184 or www.shaponline.org.

• William Tietjen, (908) 475-6505 or Jerome Frecon, (856) 307-6450, New Jersey State Horticultural Society, or http://gloucester.rce.rutgers.edu.

• Robert Black, Maryland State Horticultural Society, (301) 271-7491.

For more information on the vegetable, potato or greenhouse ornamental program and registration, contact William Troxell, Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, (717) 694-3596 or www.pvga.org.

Persons registered for either the fruit or vegetable program can attend all the sessions offered (fruit, vegetable, and small fruit sessions) plus the trade show. Registration either through the mail or at the door is required to attend both the trade show and educational sessions.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

The next part of my assignment was spent with a one-year old milk cooperative called Javlacta. They are located in Southern Moldova, where milk production is less common. The co-op manager, Ms. Maria Culesov, is well educated, articulate, and has very good business and computer skills. My job was to help her develop a strong business plan for this new and fragile cooperative.

It was clear that Ms. Culesov was both exited about their future prospects and frustrated by all the setbacks they had experienced during the past 12 months. There are expectations in Moldova that any new business should start immediately with large profits. Also, the many villagers think about making money today, not tomorrow, making the concept of investment difficult.

But cooperatives only work if farmers are willing to invest together in a new business. Thus the concept of a cooperative is very new and strange to the villagers. Part of Ms. Culesov's role is to educate the villagers about production issues and cooperatives, and to help them contribute to a new form of business that they can all participate in.

Part of my role as a CNFA volunteer is to provide these fledgling co-op leaders a bit of encouragement. I did what I could to help Ms. Culesov. I was very impressed with her business savvy and leadership skills. I explained that it will take time for the villagers to understand what a cooperative is all about.

I also explained that the cooperative leader is someone who has no friends. Her role is to be tough and business-minded, and that she had a tremendous responsibility to all the members. There is no school or classes that can teach her all that she will need to learn. I also said I was confident that she was going to be very successful in her new role.

The Moldovan economy is slowly trying to recover from the events of the past 10 years. Agriculture is an important economic base for the country and that's why CNFA is focusing their American volunteers on this sector of the economy. It provides jobs and economic activity for those villagers who want to stay home and work. It is also very encouraging for me to see strong, well-educated leaders such as Visillii Gheorghita and Ms. Culesov. Also, it is rewarding to see new, fledgling cooperatives making economic progress in a very short period of time.

According to the USDA Food Safety and Inspection Service, Verns Moses Lake Meats, Moses Lake, Wash., is recalling 10,410 pounds of raw beef that may have been exposed to tissues containing the infectious agent that causes BSE, which has a dangerous link to transmissible spongiform encephalopathies. That includes the family of human illnesses, a variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD), which is believed to be caused by eating tissue from BSE-affected cattle.

U.S. Ag Secretary Ann M. Veneman was quick to respond to the news. "Despite this finding, we remain confident in the safety of our beef supply," Veneman said. "The risk to human health from BSE is extremely low."

Since 1990 the USDA has had an aggressive surveillance program in place to ensure detection and a swift response plan to be used if BSE is identified in the U.S.

In 2003, Veneman noted USDA has tested 20,526 head of cattle for BSE, triple the level of 2002. The surveillance program is aggressive. We commend them for that.

But USDA needs to put ALL of its resources toward eliminating the threat now. They need to impose harsher and stiffer penalties on those selling or feeding ruminant animal feed.

Perhaps more importantly, the issue is going to become one where the consumer will actively seek out those producers they can trust. According to crop manager and beef producer Matt Balliet, in the "Making An Impact" series we continue this week in the newspaper, freezer beef demand is exceeding some farmers' ability to be able to supply. Consumers want safe food, and they want to know where it's coming from.

Now with this, demand from consumers for a safe product could skyrocket.

We'll see.

existing authority by townships to regulate agriculture are just not true.

Farmers can't operate under a patchwork of separate laws and regulations that could be adopted in 1,450 townships. Some farms even cross township boundaries. If this were allowed to continue, Pennsylvania would stand alone among states by allowing an action so destructive to its agriculture.

Beyond our existing farmers, picture how the matter affects their sons and daughters, who may be thinking about staying on the farm (and who are already too few in number). Farmers, young and old, have confidence that state and federal lawmakers will deal with agriculture fairly and responsibly over the long term. But many won't risk their investment and future if they know that a few local officials — often reacting to unfounded fears rather than facts — can make up regulations that go far beyond state and federal laws.

Those who support and defend illegal township farm ordinances portray the regulations as reasonable oversight of large farms. The commonwealth already has stringent environmental safeguards which are among the most restrictive in the nation. Pennsylvania Farm Bureau will never defend willful violations of laws governing agriculture, and we continually work with agencies and lawmakers to ensure that laws are up to date.

Farm families are counting on Governor Rendell to remove the dark clouds gathering over Pennsylvania's agriculture by signing the legislation.

National Farmers Union Opposes CAFTA

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union criticized the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA), which it believes will adversely impact domestic producers of sugar, fruit, vegetable, dairy, and other commodities.

"The CAFTA agreement offers few benefits to American agriculture producers," said NFU President Dave Frederickson. "CAFTA countries represent a relatively small market of approximately 31 million people with limited resources that can be used for the purchase of agricultural products. Additional market access and tariff relief for a few U.S. products will not offset the negative impact of increased imports from these CAFTA countries."

Frederickson said that in 2003, U.S. agricultural trade deficit with the four CAFTA countries (El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua) was about $300 million, representing nearly one-third of U.S. agricultural exports to those countries. If Costa Rica joins the agreement, he said the trade deficit grows to more than $900 million and equals nearly 80 percent of the United States' exports to the five nations.

"The CAFTA agreement offers little prospect that the trade deficit with these countries will be reversed and resembles failed trade policies of the past," the farm leader said. "The CAFTA further encourages a race to the bottom for producer prices and fails to address major issues that distort fair trade."

Ag Organizations Celebrate Passage Of 'Right To Farm' Measure

CHARLENE M. SHUPP ESPENSHADE
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Lawmakers gave Pennsylvania agriculture an early Christmas gift with the passage of House Bill 1222, a bill which could seriously impact townships with illegal ordinances governing agricultural operations.

House Bill 1222 passed the General Assembly on Dec. 19 and has been sent to Gov. Rendell's office for signing. The House passed the legislation with a vote of 134-53 and the Senate with a vote of 46-3.

Agriculture organizations are pleased with this outcome.

"Clouds are beginning to clear over Pennsylvania's farms," noted Guy F. Donaldson, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) president. "The General Assembly has decided that a patchwork of illegal ordinances among townships is destructive to agriculture. The commonwealth already has stringent environmental safeguards which are among the most restrictive in the nation. Farm Bureau believes Governor Rendell will agree that certain regulations governing agriculture should be decided at the state and federal levels."

The legislation allows courts to require townships to pay a farmer's legal costs after challenging an ordinance if the officials knowingly or recklessly violated state law when adopting it. Similarly, a farmer may be required to pay the township's legal fees if a lawsuit is found to be frivolous. Approximately 50 of Pennsylvania's more than 1,450 townships have adopted ordinances that further restrict agriculture and exceed existing state laws, according to PFB statistics.

"Proponents of illegal local ordinances tried to portray these regulations as reasonable oversight of large farms. Such ordinances, in fact, create enormous barriers and uncertainty for farmers who may need to change their operations, or expand their farm to make room for sons and daughters," Donaldson said. "Farmers, young and old, won't risk an investment and their future if they know that a few local officials can impose restrictions that go far beyond state and federal laws."

"Pennsylvanians have spoken loudly and clearly about the need to maintain the rural character of the commonwealth by preserving farmland and the farmer," said Robert Gueldner, president of PennAg Industries Association. "Preservation requires uniform and fair laws across all local governments."

"The passage of House Bill 1222 is a big win for agriculture," said Gueldner. "There are ordinances in Pennsylvania that unfairly discriminate against agriculture. Municipalities have been reminded that they can not pass ordinances that are contrary to the laws and overall best interest of the commonwealth."

Pennsylvania State Grange believes that this is a positive win for agriculture.

"House Bill 1222 is vital for Pennsylvania agriculture," said Grange legislative director Brenda Shambaugh. "There are townships across the state that have knowingly passed ordinances against agriculture. One such case cost the farmer more than $80,000 to fight that illegal ordinance. This legislation gives farmers a chance to recoup costs and is a deterrent to passing these illegal acts."

While PFB, PennAg, and Grange are celebrating this bill passage, Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) is upset with how this bill was handled.

"It's a real shame that our friends in the agribusiness sector feel they have to operate this way, but in many ways the bill (HB 1222) at least speaks for itself," said Brian Snyder, PASA executive director. "They brought it in through the back door and concealed it from public view until an opportune moment when people would be too busy to notice because they knew this legislation couldn't stand the light of day. They lumped township supervisors into a bill that deals primarily with juvenile delinquents, habitual criminals and sexually violent predators, because this is how they view anyone who would get in the way of their excessive profit-taking ways.

"This bill is not about helping farmers— farmers are merely the pawns in this shadow game," said Snyder. "As with most legislation these days that is promoted as defending the family farm, it is designed instead to benefit those who take their profit off the backs of real farmers."

Visit Dairy Checkoff Booths At Farm Shows

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Dairy checkoff information will be available at both farm shows in Pennsylvania in 2004 the Keystone Farm Show in York, Jan. 6-8, and the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, Jan. 10-17. Dairy promotion activities at both events are sponsored jointly by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East and the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association.

"I encourage dairy farmers to visit either show to learn more about how the dairy checkoff is working to increase the overall demand for dairy products," said Dave Trotter, dairy farmer from Lawrence County and farmer spokesperson for ADADC Mid East.

Dairy farmers are invited to visit building 5, booth 528 at the Keystone Farm Show, located at the York Fairgrounds, and booth 5087 and 5088 in the Main Exhibition Area of the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

"Dairy farmers can learn more about how the dairy checkoff is managed efficiently and effectively and how dairy checkoff is working to bolster the image of dairy products and the dairy industry," Trotter said.

Other dairy activities at the Pennsylvania Farm Show focus on the 3-A-Day of Dairy theme. 3-A-Day of Dairy is an integrated nutrition-based marketing and consumer education program to promote three servings of dairy a day for stronger bones. Eating 3-A-Day of Dairy is easy and wholesome way to help families meet their calcium needs.

3-A-Day of Dairy activities at the dairy checkoff booth will include the "soccer shootout" and basketball "pop-a-shot" contest. Winners receive special prizes and all visitors will receive 3-A-Day of Dairy tattoos and other free educational information, along with the chance to enter a 3-A-Day of Dairy T-shirt drawing. Three winners will be selected each day of the show at 3 p.m.

Visitors may view the giant butter sculpture, created from more than 800 pounds of real butter, in the Maclay Street lobby. The butter is donated by Land O' Lakes, Inc., Carlisle. The 2004 sculpture contains additional surprise ingredients representing the dairy industry. A cheese sculpture will also honor the 75th anniversary of FFA and will be on display throughout the show.

Jan. 13 will be Dairy Day on the Culinary Connection stage featuring two well-known chefs and cookbook authors, Betty Groff and Fritz Blank. Also on Tuesday, a cow-milking contest will take place in the milking parlor. Participating will be Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff, Betty Groff, Fritz Blank, and a local TV personality.

Passing On the Farm Workshop Jan. 20

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Transferring a family farm to the next generation seems as natural as the change in seasons. But tax traps, family squabbles, and lack of financing or business planning challenge many families attempting a transition — and outright threaten the continuation of some farms.

To help Pennsylvania farm families navigate these challenges, Pennsylvania Farm Link and Penn State Cooperative Extension program will host a "Passing on the Farm" workshop Jan. 20 at the Berks County Cooperative Extension office in Leesport.

The workshop runs from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Speakers will address bringing the next generation into the farm business, farm viability, farmland preservation programs, estate planning, legal aspects of transfers, retirement planning, financing for new farmers, and crop insurance. In addition, farmers from the region will discuss their families' efforts to transfer their businesses to the next generation.

According to the 1997 Census, three times as many farm operators are over age 65 as under 35. Just from the perspective of retirement age, one-third to one-half of farmers will retire in the next decade. How we address this problem will affect agriculture in Pennsylvania for generations to come.

Marion Bowlan, executive director of Pennsylvania Farm Link, said, "How a farmer plans for his or her successor is one of the most important lifetime decisions that farmers will make. Because it requires frank and open discussions about retirement and death, many families either delay or avoid the planning process."

"This strategy only narrows the choices and options available to both the retiring farmer and the beginning farmer and may result in unwanted tax consequences. Perhaps the most difficult decision to make is the decision to 'just do it.' Once you have made that decision, there are many individuals and organizations such as Pennsylvania Farm Link that can help you in the planning process."

The Passing on the Farm Workshop is provided at no charge to farmers. Lunch will be provided at a cost of $7 per person, payable to Berks County Extension Special Account. Please contact the Berks County Extension Office by Jan. 13 (610) 378-1327 to make reservations.

To get to the workshop from Rt. 183 north, travel about ¾ of a mile to the traffic light at West Leesport Road. Turn left onto West Leesport Road. Proceed 1⅛0 mile to the stop sign, turn right onto County Road. Travel 1.1 miles on County Road. The Ag Center is on the left.

Va. Dairy Conferences Keep Farmers Up To Date

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

DAYTON, Va. — At the Montezuma Hall on Dec. 11, a group of dairy farmers that gathered for the 2003 Valley Dairy Conference heard in-depth information from Virginia Tech representatives and guest speaker, Phillip Jardon, from West Central Soy, Ralston, Iowa.

The local conference was third in a series of five being conducted in the state. The four other events scheduled were in Southwest Virginia, Rocky Mount, Farmville, and Culpeper.

The topics presented included the latest studies relating to nutrition and management of dry cows, monitoring anionic salt programs by urine pH, shorter dry periods, mastitis control, selecting sires for daughter pregnancy rate, and manipulation of light (photoperiod) to increase milk in lactating dairy cows.

Also, farm management when milk prices are low, farm efficiency in difficult times, and managing finances well in difficult times were also on the agenda.

Speakers included Dr. Steve Nickerson, head of the Virginia Tech Department of Dairy Science. When he discussed new developments in mastitis control, everyone was listening.

Nickerson said the association of bulk tank somatic cell count with herd mastitis status and results in financial losses to the tune of $180 per cow every year.

At that rate, a small herd of 50 head will generate an annual loss well above $9,000. When the herd is comprised of 400 cows, the losses climb to $72,408.

"Its a very expensive disease," Nickerson said. "We need to do all we can to decrease the somatic cell count."

In addressing the problem, dry cow therapy has a number of advantages. It reduces the IMI during early dry-off, reduces infection at calving, cure rate is higher than lactation, tissue may redevelop before calving, clinical mastitis at calving is reduced, and antibiotic contamination is minimal.

Following the 2003 Valley Dairy Conference Jerry Swisher, left, from Fairfield, and Dennis Showalter, a dairy farmer from Montezuma, discuss relevant topics.

While exterior teat sealants for deterring bacteria may look good on the surface, Nickerson said they dont really work. Those who are using the teatseal product OrbeSeal in conjunction with dry cow therapy, however, are definitely on the side of prevention, he said.

"I always say treat with a dry cow product and follow with OrbeSeal," Nickerson said, assuring those present that the product is officially approved for organic use.

"Basically, we are looking at prevention during the dry period." Nickerson said.

He also said that with heifer mastitis, flies are definitely involved.

"Heifers are our future cows. Weve got to take care of them."

Phillip W. Jardon spent considerable time discussing the nutrition and management of dry cows — the rumen, immune system, normal calcium levels, and positive energy balance.

He also discussed the high (bad), low (good), and variable DCAD (dietary cation-anion difference), in feeds.

Jardon said that sometimes farmers over-fertilize fields.

"In general, we put too much emphasis on alfalfa," Jardon said. "Cows like grass and I like grass in a close-up diet. It has a good scratch factor."

"Even experts disagree," he said, about the controversy over fiber content in the diet of a close-up cow. "We dont have it figured out, although we think we do."

Jardon also referred to a recent article, "Shorter Dry Periods Look Good," written by Robin Rastani and Ric Grummer, in Hoards Dairyman (December 2003) and copied with permission.

During a break in the conference, dairyman Dale Heatwole from Dayton said that he was interested primarily in learning about close-up and dry cow management for his mixed herd of 60 Holstein and Brown Swiss cows.

"I would like to try some OrbeSeal in the teats of a dry cow, and shorten the dry period — Ill be doing more of that," he said.

"Im going to try dry-treating heifers before they freshen," Heatwole said.

Bennet Cassell, extension dairy scientist in genetics and management, covered the gamut of information relating to sire selection in regard to daughter pregnancy rate (PR).

This covered fertility, genetics, breeding values, and selection programs to reduce the costs of production.

Manipulation of photoperiod to increase milk yield in lactating cows was a topic Iris D. Peeler discussed. Peeler is a masters degree student in the Vermont Department of Dairy Science.

She referred to a number of sources supporting her presentation and concluded that by simply manipulating light (a long day of 16 hours light and eight hours dark, for example) is a simple and cost-effective way for dairies of all sizes to increase milk yield in lactating dairy cattle.

The light technology that is selected should be as close as possible to natural light.

Aaron Musick addressed the issue of how to manage the dairy farm when milk prices are low. Musick is the herd manager at the Tifton Research Station, University of Georgia.

He defined a good manager and talked about short and long-term planning, noting the specific issues that are entailed in sound management practices.

The dairy business person must have intimate knowledge of his/her operation, past and present, before he/she can plan its future. Facilities, diary animals, equipment, employee relations, and financial accounts (business and personal) are all part of the picture.

Maintaining a records system accurately is essential to a successful operation.

Professor Ronald E. Pearson, the Vermont Department of Dairy Science, in his presentation on managing dairy operations in difficult times, said "The extreme fluctuations in milk price accentuate the need to use times of higher price to pay down debt, improve efficiency, and stockpile cash to survive the next downturn."

When problems arise they first have to be identified and the cause of them diagnosed. Alternative solutions must be examined, followed by the decision about how to solve the problem. Form a tactical plan about who does what, when, where. Last, follow up to determine if progress has been made.

"You have to go back and check if the problems are solved," Pearson said.

The financial aspect of management was covered by Gordon Groover, the Vermont extension economist.

"Critical decisions are made when times are good. When times are good, thats when you set the stage for whats going to come back and haunt you," Groover said.

Groover said farmers need to understand why they farm and they need to learn how to focus on the opportunities rather than the problems.

The conference was hosted by Alan Grove, extension dairy agent working out of the Rockingham Extension office and Tina Horn, extension dairy agent from the Augusta Extension office.

Thompson Inducted To York Holstein Hall Of Fame

JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) — Long-time dairyman, Holstein breeder and cattle exhibitor Rodman "Rod" Thompson was inducted into the York County Holstein Hall of Fame as the highlight of the Nov. 21 county dairy awards program. The annual awards dinner saluted a broad scope of achievements in Holstein, 4-H, and DHIA programs.

Thompson's dairy career spanned a half-century, beginning as a young man farming with his family on a rented farm in Bucks County. In 1944, he and his brothers pooled their savings to invest in five registered Holstein cows, paying Chris Erb of Middletown $300 per head. The following year, the family drove their 25 head of milking cows to a farm they had purchased on the opposite side of town, and named their new location Fountain Farm.

In 1951, Rod married Jane Taylor, a former Bucks County 4-H beef member. The couple began dairying on their own with a dozen cows, on a rented farm in Bucks County owned by the Grand Dutchess of Luxembourg, who had fled her native land during the war. Core Creek ran through the farm, lending its name to the Thompson's Coredale herd prefix. In 1959, when the rented facility was to be converted to horse raising, they relocated their 26 head to the farm they purchased near East Berlin.

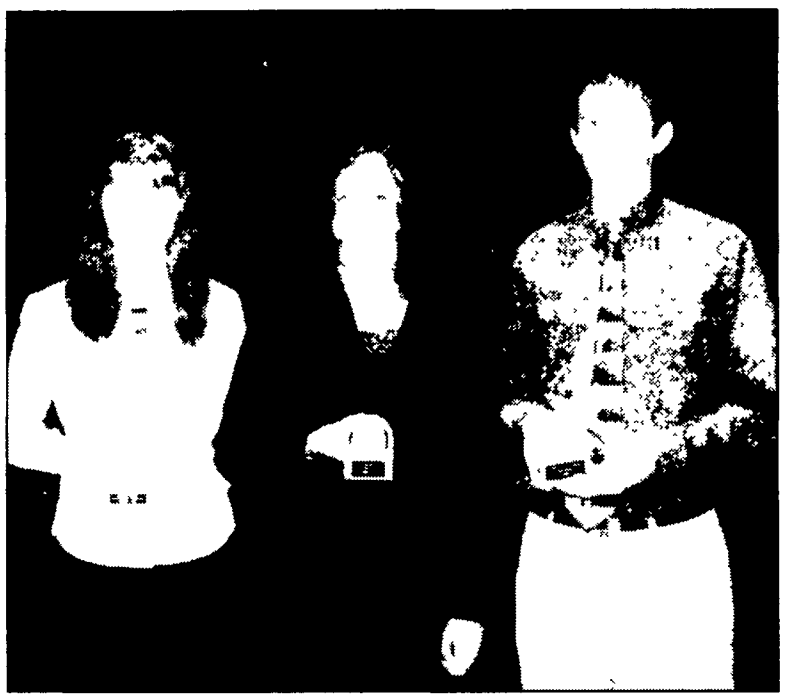
In 1961, the Thompson began exhibiting their best animals at the York Fair, a tradition which continues today with their grandchildren exhibiting descendants of some of their prized cow families. Over the years, the Coredale show string took numerous championships and premier designations at local, regional, and state competitions, as well as tallying up some All-Pennsylvania honors. During that time, Rod and his family bred 12 Excellent cows, merchandised their herd genetics, and worked with embryo transfer.



Outstanding York County 4-H dairy members for 2003 are Lydia Eddinger, Trisha Knight, and Cory Thompson.

Rod has been active in county and state Holstein programs, including stints as county club president and secretary. Both Rod and Jane served as 4-H leaders, giving generously of their time to area youth. They have been honored as 25-year members of the former Interstate Milk Producers and won production honors for both crop and herd achievements.

The Coredale milking herd was sold in 1994, giving Rod and Jane a well-earned chance to slow down. They kept the heifers, merchandising them as they freshened. Only a few heifers remain on the farm now, along with some Black Angus crossbreds and Jane's two pet alpacas. Rod works part-time on their township's road maintenance crew. The Thompsons continue to crop their land, including growing some seasonal produce which they sell at roadside.

York County's youth were honored as well during the program, including recognition given to the state 4-H dairy judging team which won national honors at the recent North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky. Three of the four team members are York countians — Michael Bosley, Trisha Knight, and Cory Thompson — while the fourth, Clayton Wood, is from neighboring Adams County. Coaches for the team are Paul Knight and Jeff Rutz.

Each of York County's three dairy 4-H clubs honored outstanding members for the year. In the Central York Club, honorees were Katie Baumgardner, novice; Nathan Baumgardner, junior; Amanda Thompson, intermediate; and Cory Thompson, senior.

The Milk-N-Money Club awarded outstanding recognition to Jamie Nisely, novice; Chris Kilgore, junior; Kyle Miller, intermediate; John Miller, senior; and Jason Cooper, cloverbud. Southwest dairy club outstanding honorees were Aaron Doll, rookie; Wren Anderson, junior; Sadye Anderson, intermediate; and Lydia Eddinger, senior.

Recognized for achievement in overall county dairy activities were Cory Thompson, outstanding member; Trisha Knight, runner-up; and Lydia Eddinger, second runner-up. Josh Miller earned the Justin LoBianco scholarship, awarded annually to a deserving dairy youth by the family of the young man killed several years ago in a farming accident.

Several junior Holstein members received awards for milk, fat, and protein records produced by their project animals. Christina Knight, topped all categories in the milking yearling division with Woodbine Storm Lil-TW, with a 305-day lactation of 19,634 pounds of milk, 922 fat, and 656 protein.

Two-year-old honors went to Justin Hall, first, with Woodbine Durham Macadamia, 305-day, 26,709 pounds of milk, 924 fat, and 875 protein. Second was Amanda Thompson with Coredale Shark Shania-ET, 305-day, 22,938 pounds of milk, 811 fat, and 687 protein.

In the three-year-old division, Stevie Greek took top milk honors with Ridge Hill Shark Lacey, 287-day, 30,867 pounds of milk, 859 fat, and 854 protein. First in protein was Candice Knight's Woodbine Mity P Maple, 305-day, 30,787 pounds of milk, 1,171 fat, and 870 protein. Angie Beshore's entry, Beshore Encore Jada, was high fat winner, with 305-day, 29,809 pounds of milk, 1,204 fat, and 831 protein.

Cory Thompson's Coredale Linjet R Dazzle earned all the placings in the four-year-old category, finishing in 305 days with 27,720 pounds of milk, 1,124 fat, and 855 protein.

In the aged cow division, Cory Thompson's Coredale Chairman Toola was first in milk and protein with a 305-day lactation of 32,775 pounds of milk, 1,154 fat, and 958 protein. First in butterfat was Beshore Mystique Jane, owned by Angie Beshore, and finishing her 305-day record with 30,940 pounds of milk, 1,193 fat, and 903 protein. Cory Thompson also had a second-place milk entry, Coredale Broker Cutie, with a 305-day record of 31,229 pounds of milk, 1,054 fat, and 840 protein.

Progressive junior breeder awards went to KC Beshore for Beshore Shark Goofy, Angie Beshore for Beshore RM Jillian, Beshore Encore Julie and Beshore Encore Jada, and to Shane Hall for Woodbine Regent Ella.

Pa. Grazing And Forage Conference Selects Keynote Speakers

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Forage and Grazing Conference, set for March 3 and 4 in Grantville, will feature forage and grazing experts Dr. Ron Morrow and Jerry Swisher as keynote speakers.

Dennis Wolff, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, will speak on the state's dairy initiative.

Dr. Morrow is a USDA animal scientist with ATTRA (Appropriate Technology Transfer for Rural Areas) in Arkansas. Morrow's work with ATTRA addresses sustainable livestock production and grass-fed beef.

Prior to joining ATTRA, Morrow worked for 20 years as a livestock specialist at the University of Missouri, teaching beef production courses and conducting research on cow/calf and forage/grazing systems.

Jerry Swisher studied dairy science at Virginia Tech and is dairy extension agent for the northern part of Virginia, based in Harrisonburg, Va.

Swisher has worked with grass-based dairy farms for many years. His innovative work has received nationwide attention.

Swisher developed the dairy loafing lot rotational management system, which helps dairy producers protect groundwater by establishing sod areas that withstand cattle treading. He also works on a cost-saving grazing management system for raising replacement heifers.

As a 4-H dairy judging team coach, Swisher has for many years helped youth interested in the dairy business.

For more information or a conference registration brochure, contact your local extension agent or call Lisa at (814) 865-2543.

BSE Found In Washington State

CHARLENE M. SHUPP ESPENSHADE
Lancaster Farming Staff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — USDA Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman announced Tuesday the confirmation of a positive case of bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) or "mad cow disease" in an adult Holstein cow in Washington state.

As part of the USDA's response plan, the farm has been placed under quarantine. The farm is located in Mabton, Wash. about 40 miles southeast of Yakima, Wash.

"Despite this finding, we remain confident in the safety of our beef supply," said Veneman. "The risk to human health from BSE is extremely low."

The cow was a "downer" cow that was sent to Verns Moses Lake Meats in Moses Lake, Wash.

Samples were taken Dec. 9 from the suspected cow as part of USDA's targeted BSE surveillance system and sent to the USDA's National Veterinary Services Laboratory in Ames, Iowa for testing. Positive results were returned on Dec. 22 and Dec. 23.

Samples have been flown by military aircraft to the Central Veterinary Lab at Weybridge, England for confirmation. Veneman said results will be known in three to five days.

USDA has initiated a comprehensive investigation working with state, public health, and industry counterparts to determine the source of the disease. USDA will also work with the Food and Drug Administration as they conduct an animal feed investigation, the primary pathway for the spread of BSE.

BSE is a progressive neurological disease among cattle that is always fatal. It belongs to a family of diseases known as transmissible spongiform encephalopathies. BSE has been linked to variant Creutzfeldt Disease (vCJD) in humans, which is believed to be caused by eating animal tissue from BSE-infected cattle.

The U.S. has conducted a BSE surveillance program since 1990.

"The safety of our food supply and public health are high priorities of this administration and high priorities of USDA. In the last year we have tested 20,526 head of cattle for BSE, which is triple the level of the previous year of 2002. The presumptive positive today is result of our aggressive surveillance program. This is a clear indication that our surveillance and detection program is working," said Veneman.

National Cattle Beef Association (NCBA) commends USDA for their vigilance in monitoring the beef industry.

"NCBA has fully supported an aggressive surveillance program in the U.S. to assure that if BSE were introduced it would be detected and eliminated. We applaud the swift action taken by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to announce the finding of this possible case and its aggressive investigation of the circumstances," said Terry Stokes, chief executive officer of NCBA. "The U.S. cattle industry remains committed to eliminating this disease from North America. As such, we will work closely with the USDA to carry out a full investigation and determine what additional preventive measures, if any, need to be taken to continue to protect animal and public health."

The Pennsylvania Beef Council also backs USDA's handling of the case. "Currently this is a suspected case in one animal and the USDA is aggressively investigating this case. The Pennsylvania Beef Council supports a full investigation and the necessary steps to eliminate this disease from North America and protect the health of U.S. cattle. Meanwhile, consumers should continue to eat beef with confidence," said Paul Slayton, executive director, Pennsylvania Beef Council.

"While the one case of BSE in Washington State is unfortunate, systems have been built over the past 15 years to prevent this disease from spreading and affecting either animal health or public health. The dairy cow in question was quickly identified and the infectious agent contained, and the farm of origin has been identified and quarantined — this proves that the system to detect and eliminate BSE is effective. The 2001 Harvard University Center for Risk Assessment report concluded that 'measures taken by the U.S. government and industry make the U.S. robust against the spread of BSE to animals or humans should it be introduced in this country.'"

In response to the BSE finding, the Washington-based meat packing plant has implemented a recall for beef produced on Dec. 9.

While USDA remains confident in their findings and isolation of the disease, the fallout for exported beef began hours after confirmation. According to the Associated Press, Australia, Hong Kong, Japan, Malaysia, Russia, Singapore, South Korea, and Taiwan took steps to suspend imports only a few house after the U.S. government announced their findings.

According to USDA statistics, the countries that have enacted bans on U.S. beef account for more than 60 percent of American beef exports this year. Japan is the largest overseas market for U.S. beef, with sales that totaled $842 million in 2003, according to the U.S. Meat Export Federation.

In the U.S. beef markets, after having a strong price in the fall, are preparing for the impact BSE could have on beef prices. Live Cattle and Feeder Cattle Futures closed at a loss of $1.50 across the board at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The markets ended trading at 10:50 a.m. CST, Wednesday. The U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) is monitoring the markets.

James E. Newsome, chairman of the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission said, "We are aware of the USDA announcement of a presumptive positive test result for BSE in a single Holstein cow on a farm in Washington state. We have been in close touch with the USDA, the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange ever since that report.

"Any time there is an announcement of this kind, it becomes a market fundamental and you expect markets to react to fundamentals. We fully support the CME's decision to keep the live and feeder cattle markets open for business tomorrow and Friday, so that they can fully process this fundamental information. Should there be excess volatility in the market, both cattle contracts have daily price limits in place to contain that volatility. And the commission will be stepping up its surveillance of these markets over the coming days to guard against any activity of a potentially manipulative nature.

"In addition, it should be noted that the cow involved is not of the type that is deliverable on the CME's live cattle contract. The Commission and the Exchange will continue to work closely together to allow the markets to absorb this event in as orderly a fashion as possible."

New Farmers, New Generation

Marion Bowlan

Pennsylvania Farm Link

RESOLVE TO START YOUR TRANSFER PLANNING NOW

New Year's resolutions are notorious for being made with good intentions, but somewhere along the line losing their punch. What starts out strong dwindles to the status quo or even backslides into unproductive behavior. We're good at putting off things that are not immediate: we'll do it tomorrow. Never mind that tomorrow never comes.

Farm transfer planning is fraught with the same problems as New Year's resolutions. It is one of those things that can be put off. Fixing that broken piece of equipment we need to harvest or plant the crops demands our immediate attention, but this can wait. After all, no one is going to send us reminder notices that our transfer planning is past due and failure to start our planning will result in stiff penalties or higher payments.

But consider the high penalties the next generation needs to pay in the following situation: one parent dies and the other ends up in a nursing home with no succession plan for how the farm will be managed. The children have developed lives of their own, interest in the farm as a business and livelihood is at an all-time low, and selling it looks like a good option.

Given this lack of planning, a common and easy resolution is to sell the land for as much as you can get. After all, the surviving parent needs the money for nursing home care. Everyone knows health care costs are through the roof. What's left can be divided up evenly among the heirs. No one really wants to farm anyway, not in today's farm economy. Let someone else worry about where our food comes from. We can always go to the grocery store and get whatever we want

Acuna matata! No worries! Be happy!

Just as Simba (in the Lion King) found that he needed to take on his kingly responsibilities for his family's pride, so too farm families that would like to see their farm businesses survive have a responsibility to plan for those businesses to transition to the next generation. The mark of a good entrepreneur is his/her ability to build a successful business and to pass it on to the next generation.

Having one generation build up a farm, only to have the next generation "milk" or "harvest" it , and then have the third generation start over or sell what's left to the highest bidder so permeates our family farm culture that it seems to be the acceptable way to go. We need to reflect for a moment, stop the destructive financial and emotional toll we are taking on ourselves and our families, and resolve to begin anew. We can find better answers for the next generation of farmers if we have the will and the determination to do so.

Want to learn more about transitioning your farm to the next generation? Attend one of four "Passing on the farm" workshops scheduled this winter: Jan. 20 in Leesport, Jan. 27 in Troy, Feb. 11 in Schelocta, and Feb. 19 in Manheim. Please call Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 for more information.

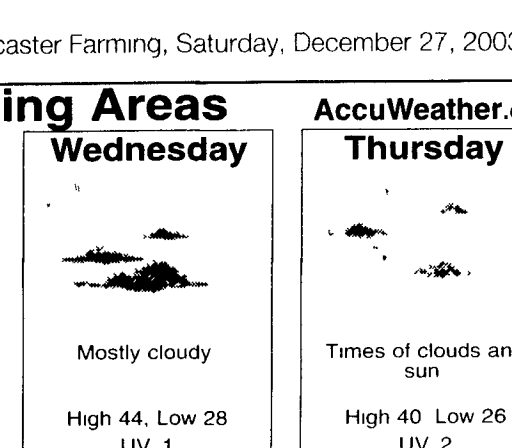
Higher Digestibility & Standability



MC 615 Corn Silage

Stands Above the Rest for Standability & Digestibility!

Masters Choice 615

A 115 day hybrid- Makes a sweet smelling, nutrient rich silage with high grain content, and excellent digestibility. Plant health is also excellent. Reports of 2002 and 2003 performance have been excellent. Comments made by farmers include: excellent yields, very few broken stalks, even after tropical storm Isabel went through, very high levels of sugar (typically 4 to 6%), and great packing characteristics

Note In extreme wind, leaves were shredded, and stalks blown over, but very few stalks were broken MC 615 has a dense, but shorter stalk - usually shorter than most silage hybrids

The secret to Masters Choice standability and great digestibility is less lignin, but much more digestible cellulose fiber MC 615 and its short season half sister MC 520Q have thick, dense stalks that are not only nutritious, but also yield outstanding for a corn of average height.

Additional Masters Choice Hybrids with Excellent Standability

MC 605Q - 114 days A high stress performer with some natural tolerance to corn borer It has moderately soft kernels at silo filling time Widely adapted to different soil types and planting populations Will produce more than one ear if conditions are good Great standability If planted below 18,000, it usually produces 2 ears per stalk

MC 564 - 112 days New for 2004 A high yielding grain variety Excellent plant health and standability Also easy to hand shuck and shell

MC 530 - 105 days A high stress performer with high sugars It tassels and pollinates about 5 days earlier than similar maturity hybrids Excellent standability

MC 520Q - 102 days. Similar to 615 in digestibility Also has excellent standability and some natural tolerance to corn borer

Simply elegant entertaining can be simple if you ask guests to bring hors d'oeuvre or canapes to serve buffet style.

Canapes are a finger food that has a built in bread component such as puff pastry, baked dough, tortilla or crackers.

Hors d'oeuvre are usually finger foods but may require a toothpick, skewer or small fork. Hors d'oeuvres may be served hot or cold and include spreads, dips, fruits, vegetables, meat, seafood, egg or nut categories.

Try this recipe from Arlinda Miller, Wernersville.

'CRABULOUS' BAKED CRAB DIP

2 packages cream cheese
3 large cloves of garlic, roasted
1 pound crabmeat
½ pint sour cream
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
Juice of half a lemon
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup grated cheddar cheese, divided

Soften cream cheese. Add garlic, crabmeat, sour cream, mayonnaise, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, dry mustard, and half the cheddar cheese. Put in an 8-inch baking dish and sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes. Serve hot with crackers. Serves 8-12.

To roast garlic, slice off top of garlic exposing cloves. Place garlic on aluminum foil and sprinkle with olive oil, salt and pepper. Seal in foil. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Cool and squeeze to release garlic.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

The mid-holiday leftovers weekend is here.

Shredded bits of torn, colorful paper turn up in corners of the house. Errant strands of tree tinsel cling to sweaters, your snuggly afghan and the family dog. A couple of our late mailed holiday cards are still showing up in postal deliveries to friends.

Menus feature turkey sandwiches, turkey and bisquits, turkey soup, turkey potpie, ham sandwiches, ham salad, ham casseroles. Your favorite cookies, however, were wiped out days ago.

In keeping with the mood of the moment, today we serve up some leftover tidbits of interest of the year, lingering on our desk. We'll share them to chuckle over before pitching them for good.

Just in case you had not had your bellyful of turkey about now, ponder the turkey and gravy-flavored soda that a Seattle company released in a limited amount, just prior to Thanksgiving. The Jones Soda Company is reportedly known for devising quirky-flavored soft drinks. Soon after the drink's release, the novel flavored soda was selling on e-Bay.com for more than $60 for a two-pack bottle.

Let's just be thankful they only made a limited amount.

Also from the West Coast comes the tale of a chicken that became famous sometime ago after being fastened by pranksters to a collection of 100 helium balloons and released skyward, apparently in imitation of a television commercial. Some 50 people showed up at the local animal shelter after the chicken, dubbed Amelia (for the female pioneer aviator no doubt) was safely retrieved and put up for adoption. The time-tested method of draw-of-the-straw awarded the high-flying chicken to one of 22 finalists approved by the shelter as potential adopters.

In more news of the bird world, hawks trained to control the pidgeon overpopulation in a New York City park were grounded following a slight altercation in the park involving one of the aerial patrols. The hawks were being utilized to limit pigeon numbers, aimed at improved sanitation for park user.

The successful-to-that-point park cleanup effort came to a screeching halt when one of the flying patrols sailed down and sank its talons into the back of a chihuahua, out for a walk with its owner. The tiny pooch was promptly shipped off to a veterinarian via one of the city's taxis and the hawks retired from duty.

Can't you just visualize the pigeons celebrating that move as they partied on the park's statues?

Timely for this Flu Season comes research findings that suggest your mood has a lot to do with "catching a cold." People who are nervous, depressed or angry were found to be more likely to come down with colds than folks who are happy, optimistic, and upbeat.

We've always suspected that, having observed over the years that those in our extended family tended to catch colds when they were stressed out by life's demands.

So, chill out.

Now, as we head toward the sometimes noisy and raucus celebrations that go with the arrival of a new year, please take to heart a mid-summer news tidbit from our own local state police headquarters. After being hauled in to the barracks for drunken driving, an individual phoned an acquaintance to come pick him up at headquarters and take him home. The friend showed up at the barracks, where officers promptly noted that the second individual appeared to be having similarly over-imbibed. After investigation, they filed DUI charges against the friend.

We are still wondering who finally hauled this pair to their homes.

Which behooves us to share the thought that, if one wishes to celebrate the incoming year with something fermented, consider sauerkraut. Sauerkraut is tasty, (especially when paired with some pork roast or chops) very inexpensive and, according to local tradition, assures good luck through the ensuing year if eaten on New Year's Day.

So, if you want to have a good new year, resolve to eat your sauerkraut for good luck. Resolve to be upbeat and happy.

And please resolve to never send a chicken skyward attached to a pack of balloons.

Happy New Year!

Special Session For Women In Agriculture At New York Fruit And Vegetable Expo

CORNELL, N. Y. — A special session geared toward women involved in the business of agriculture is planned at the 2004 Empire State Fruit and Vegetable Expo, Feb 10-12 at the Rochester Clarion Hotel and the Riverside Convention Center in Rochester.

Sponsored in part by Cornell University and N.Y. FarmNet, the day-long session, is scheduled for Feb.1. The program will focus on issues faced by women who are owners and managers of an agricultural business as well as women who are working on their family farms.

Betty Nichols, of Rushford, N.Y. said, 'Sometimes we (farm women) are put on the back burner. We need to know what's going on just as much as our husbands do. It needs to be a partnership. Frequently I am called upon to work with the nutritionist, veterinarian or crop consultants, and I need to know how to work with them."

A highlight of the women's session will be a female farmer panel discussion regarding the role of women in agriculture The panelists will share experiences concerning marketing, management and business changes that are being faced and their roles throughout the process of decision-making.

In addition, speakers from Cornell and the industry will discuss information on marketing, communication, regulations for farm labor record-keeping and health care planning for farm families.

. For information about the Expo, please contact Jeff or Lindy Kubecka, NYSVGA, P.O. Box 70, Kirkville, NY 13082 or at www.nysaes.cornell.edu/hort/04expo/. Lowering Type II Diabetes Risk

According to the American Diabetes Association approximately 17 million Americans have diabetes. Of this group 94 percent have Type II Diabetes. In addition it is estimated that another 16 million people have "pre-diabetes," this includes both adults and children. With these drastic numbers, diabetes is now the nation's sixth leading cause of death.

Diabetes is a disease in which the body has difficulty using food for energy. This is caused by a lack or insufficient amount of insulin in the body.

Another term for diabetes is hyperglycemia which means high blood sugar. Since the body does not have a sufficient amount of insulin to transport sugar (from the breakdown of foods we eat) from the blood to the body cells where it is used for energy, the sugar in our blood rises which causes both short and long term problems.

With so many people having this disease the question you should be asking yourself is, am I at risk for developing this disease and if so what can I do about it?

There are many risk factors for the development of diabetes, some we can control and some we can't. Take a look at the risk factors for the development of Type II Diabetes to begin to assess your likelihood of developing this disease.

- Does a close family member have or had diabetes (father, mother, brother, sister)?
- Did you have gestational diabetes or a baby weighing 10 pounds or more?
- Are you African-American, Hispanic/Latino, Asian-American, Pacific Islander, and/or Native-American?
- Over the age of 45?
- Overweight or Obese?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, check with your health care provider about your risk factors and the need for further testing.

Although research does not provide an answer as to how to prevent diabetes there are many things you can do now to decrease your risk for developing this disease.

The Type II Diabetes Prevention Trial has shown that with positive lifestyle changes to help decrease weight and increase physical activity, individuals can lower their risk for developing this disease. One of the keys is to achieve and maintain a healthy weight. Weight loss of 10 to 20 pounds can be beneficial. This weight loss can be achieved by making small, healthy changes to your diet that include the following:

- Watching your portion sizes.
- Paying attention to the amount of food you eat in the evening.
- Eating slowly, take your time and enjoy the foods you eat.
- Increasing your servings of fruits and vegetables. Consume 5 to 9 servings per day. Substitute these foods for high-fat, nutrient dilute snack foods.
- Drinking plenty of water. Regular soda and fruit juices can contribute extra calories to your diet. Minimize alcohol intake.
- Increasing fiber in your diet. Higher fiber foods fill you up quicker and keep you fuller longer. Switch to high fiber breads and cereals by looking for "whole wheat flour" or "whole wheat cereal" as the first ingredient in the ingredient list.

In addition it is important to increase physical activity. It is recommended that you include at least 30 minutes or more of physical activity five to seven days per week. Remember to start slowly with activities that you will want to continue to do further down the road.

Always check with your health care provider before starting any type of physical activity program.

While we don't have control over our race or our family tree, we do have control over our diets and our activities, so if you feel you are at risk for developing Type II Diabetes begin now to take control — You Have the Power!

FRIENDSVILLE (Susquehanna Co.) — I have chosen to spotlight Scenery View Farm, owned and operated by Bill and Vicky Jones and their family in Friendsville.

Bill was raised on this farm and although Vicky was not raised on a farm her grandfather was a farmer. Bill and Vicky along with their sons Casey and Bill and daughter Julie Chilson and their families all work on the family farm. They also have four part-time workers.

They have recently increased their herd size, add a solar style free-stall barn which holds 200 animals and added a slurry store. The total herd consists of 240 milking Holsteins and 160 Holstein calves and heifers. Jones' have three freestall barns and own 250 acres of land and rent additional acreage. Jones' harvested 238 acres of corn and about 300 acres of hay.

The parlor is an 18 parallel milking parlor where they milk three times a day. Milking times are 2:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. This is a four generation farm with three generations working on the farm. The Jones family have received several DHIA milk production awards.

Dairy Fact: Milk offers a powerful package of calcium and eight other essential nutrients. Recent studies have shown that the nutrients in dairy foods are effective in preventing osteoporosis, obesity, certain cancers and also reducing and preventing high blood pressure. This scientific research provides even more evidence that milk and dairy foods are a great value for consumers.

Eating Well To Stay Healthy
The Role of Protein

First popular in the 1960s and 1970s, high-protein, low-carbohydrate diets have experienced a recent resurgence as a means of losing weight quickly. While protein is an important player in weight control and a safe eating plan, healthful weight loss involves eating from all food groups.

When you're trying to change eating habits to maintain a healthy weight for the long-term, enjoying all foods is important. If you choose to follow the latest miracle diet that eliminates one or more food groups, you will never adopt habits for enjoying moderate amounts of all food.

As with many fad diets, the high-protein, low-carbohydrate diets cause weight loss because they are low in calories. Unfortunately, these fad diets may have negative effects on your body. Whenever you diet, your body breaks down muscle for energy. The muscle that's broken down releases water for excretion by your body, which is why the scale initially reflects weight loss. But the weight loss is mostly water.

If you choose to remain on a high-protein, low-carbohydrate diet, you may notice a diminished appetite. Your body will begin to produce substances called ketones for energy, but ketones are not the body's preferred fuel. Long-term productions of ketones can cause nausea and dehydration.

Controlled weight loss (not more than one to two pounds per week), combined with a balanced diet and physical activity, minimizes muscle loss. And since muscle uses many more calories than fat tissue, maintaining muscle is important in long-term weight control.

Ask your dietitian or doctor for help in developing a personal weight loss plan based on all food groups in the Food Guide Pyramid. A copy of the Food Guide Pyramid is available from your local Extension Office.

So how much protein is enough? Dietary guidelines suggest the average adult consume about 15 percent of calories from protein. For an average, sedentary man, that translates to about 75 grams of protein per day. For an average, sedentary woman, it's about 55 grams per day.

Pork is an excellent source of lean protein and a healthful choice that pairs well with all your favorite flavors. Today's lean pork has an average of 31 percent less fat, 17 percent fewer calories, and 10 percent less cholesterol than 20 years ago.

Here is a delicious quick and easy pork dinner that will fit into any weight loss program.

Honey Mustard Tenderloin

1 whole pork tenderloin, about 1 pound
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
4 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. Combine all ingredients except pork. Brush sauce onto pork; place pork in roasting pan. Roast for 20-25 minutes, until meat thermometer registers 155-160 degrees F. Slice thinly to serve. Serves 4.

Prep time: 5 minutes. Cook time: 25 minutes. Nutrient information per serving: Calories 230; Protein 24 g., Fat 4 g., Saturated fat 1.5 g., Sodium 150 mg., Cholesterol 75 mg., Carbohydrate 25 g.

Checkoff-Funded Beefmobile To Reach Grassroots Producers And Consumers

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Beef producers across the country will soon receive first-hand information about how their beef checkoff dollars are used. The delivery vehicle: a "Beefmobile," a van emblazoned with beef art that will travel across the United States and visit livestock marketing facilities.

Under funding approved by the Beef Promotion Operating Committee for fiscal 2004, which began Oct. 1, the Beefmobile will visit 100 livestock marketing facilities and make 100 consumer stops. The Operating Committee left the option open for state beef councils to add to the number of stops in their respective states by providing additional funding when the van is in their area.

In addition to delivering information to beef producers, the Beefmobile will have a consumer component and whet consumer appetites for beef. As it travels along the nation's highways, the Beefmobile will serve as a rolling billboard. It will also reach out to consumers at retail stores and food festivals and stop by schools to provide teachers with literature about beef.

"Reaching out to grassroots producers who market through livestock marketing facilities is refreshing," said Shawn Madden of Torrington Livestock Market, Torrington, Wyo. "These individuals who have been contributing to the beef checkoff deserve attention..."

The proposal to fund a Beefmobile with checkoff dollars was brought before the Cattlemen's Beef Board by National Livestock Producers Association (NLPA), a livestock marketing organization based in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"The Beefmobile idea began as an outreach program to grassroots producers — those who contribute to the beef checkoff but are not fully informed about how their checkoff dollars are used," said R. Scott Stuart, president and CEO of NLPA.

The Beefmobile will make its debut in mid-January. Beef producers will recognize this rolling billboard by its beef-oriented design and prominent beef checkoff logo.

Coordination and promotion of the Beefmobile will be handled by NLPA and Charleston/Orwig of Hartland, Wis., NLPA's marketing communications agency of record.

"Funding of the Beefmobile by the Cattlemen's Beef Board sends a clear message to beef producers," Stuart summarizes. "Those overseeing the beef checkoff want all beef producers to know how their checkoff dollars are being used for research and promotion.

"As a livestock marketing organization, NLPA wanted the everyday beef producer to have direct access to the results of beef checkoff research and promotional information. The Beefmobile means producers will no longer have to attend a specific meeting to obtain information about their beef checkoff. They can simply stop by the van when they visit their local livestock marketing facility."

Stuart notes that the consumer component of the project — the stops at supermarkets, food festivals and schools along the way — as added to the Beefmobile to leverage checkoff dollars to the greatest extent possible.

"When the Beefmobile is traveling from one livestock marketing facility to the next, it just made sense to include stops at retail stores, food festivals and schools," Stuart said.

Don't wait for '04 to make smart choices

I always start the new year with a resolution to lose the weight I've gained during the holidays. Can you give me tips to prevent it from happening in the first place?

Good for you for thinking ahead! There are lots of things you can do between now and Jan. 1 to keep in shape. These are just a few ideas.

• Walk. Give yourself some extra time at the mall to walk a few laps before loading up with shopping bags. And don't waste time searching for a parking spot near the entrance — take a spot in far end of the lot to allow yourself to get some extra steps in. Walking briskly and often will burn extra calories you might consume over the holidays.

• Watch the snacks. Soft hot pretzels or nachos and cheese dip might be tempting, but they can really add extra calories to your diet. For example, one large soft pretzel (about 5 ounces) has nearly 500 calories. Carry an apple or banana to snack on instead.

• Eat breakfast. Too often, people skip the early meal in an attempt to save calories for later in the day. But studies show that people who eat breakfast tend to eat fewer calories, have a leaner body mass, and have a better nutritional status than those who don't eat breakfast.

• Make smart fast food choices. Time slips away when you're rushed and it might seem to make sense to pull into the nearest fast-food drive-thru for dinner. If you do, choose small sandwiches without cheese or small salads with fat-free dressings. Beware of sandwiches with lots of meat, cheese, mayonnaise and other toppings — they can have 1,000 calories and more than 60 grams of fat. Better yet, pull that slow cooker out of the cupboard and plan ahead with healthful, satisfying meals.

• Make smart choices at holiday gatherings. Eat a healthy snack consisting of protein and complex carbohydrates before going to a holiday gathering where a buffet table will be tempting. While at the buffet, pile up on the lean meats and fresh vegetables, and enjoy smaller-than-you're-used-to portions of higher-calorie treats. Really take time to savor those treats — don't mindlessly gobble them up. And watch the alcohol. Not only does it add empty calories, but it can weaken your resolve to limit yourself on other high-calorie foods. Have fun, but remember — that New Year's Resolution is right around the corner.

What's Christmas Without Cookies?

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Sections Staff

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) —

Cookies, cookies everywhere.
Baked for fun, made to share
Home-baked cookies —
Cookies by the pound
A better way has not been found
To make these confections
Favorite Christmas treats
Than to make them together
Celebrating good eats!
There must be lots of chocolate
(The kinds are limitless!)
Chocolate crinkles, chocolate chips, or garnished with a Hershey's kiss.
There are other favorites,
(date balls are always around)
Along with sand tarts,
The varieties abound.
So put on your apron
Or don your chef's hat.
It's time to bake cookies
That's where the Christmas spirit's at!

Everyone wants to make the most of the holidays, however with church programs, trips to shopping malls, office parties, or family get-togethers, you may find yourself "dashing through the snow" and wondering where the spirit of Christmas has gone.

To enjoy the season and be productive at the same time, several generations of the Nissley family have been combining forces and doing a cookie bake and exchange for many years. The annual event allows them to not only get an abundance of cookies, but also time to enjoy being together over the holidays.

"Even if I lived in California I would come home for the cookie bake," said Pat Redmond.

Family members take turns hosting the day. Sisters, aunts, mothers, daughters, and cousins come to cookie bake day, anticipating a day of laughter, catching up, and of course eating warm cookies right from the oven. Everyone brings one, two, or even three kinds of cookies, bars, or bread loaves to share. Although most of the confections are already baked, the time together would not be the same without lots of cookies being made throughout the day.

This year about 70 dozen cookies were distributed between the bakers. Even though the number is substantial, the cookies are used as gifts for coworkers, teachers, bus drivers, and friends, served at holiday parties, or sent to far-off relatives, so they are quickly eaten by eager taste-testers.

This year peanut blossoms, pecan tussies, chocolate crinkles, festive chocolate bark, blueberry and cranberry bread, double chocolate snowquakes, toffee bars, molasses drops, peanut butter temptations, dateballs, chinese chews, and chocolate chip, cream cheese, and cherry icebox cookies were baked and exchanged.

Although some of the same cookie selections show up each year, the bakers also try new varieties and exchange recipes.

Whether or not you bake cookies by yourself or with others, here are a few hints and tips to make holiday baking fun. Although it's too late for this year's pre-Christmas baking, clip this article for reference for next year's baking marathon.

These tips are from allrecipes.com.

Fats (butter, margarine, shortening, and oil), are the main players in how the cookie spreads. Shortening and margarine are more stable than butter, which helps keep cookies in their original shape. Oil will also help cookies keep their original shape. Butter melts at a lower temperatures than those other fats, so cookies may spread out more, however many people prefer the taste that butter lends to cookies. Additionally, the amount of fat plays a role, since more fat will mean that the cookies will tend to be flatter and chewier to crispier. Fluffier cookies come with less fat.

Flour is also a consideration, since flours with a high protein content (bread and all-purpose flours) will yield cookies that tend to be flatter, darker, and crispier in contrast to cookies made with cake or pastry flour.

Sugar is also a consideration. White sugar makes a crisper cookie than brown sugar or honey. Brown sugar in cookies actually absorbs moisture, so the cookies will stay chewy. Lowering the amount of sugar called for in a recipe will make the cookies more puffy.

Eggs are a staple in many cookie recipes. If egg is the liquid, it will help make the cookies fluffy, while water or other liquids will make the cookies spread.

Also, egg yolks will help to add moistness while the whites will make the cookies drier.

The way you make your cookies is also important. The creaming step — where the fat and the sugar are whipped together until fluffy — pulls air into the batter. While you need this air to make your baking soda and/or baking powder work, be conservative.

Combine the wet and dry ingredients, but do not whip them.

Your oven also helps to determine your cookie's final appearance.

Chilling the dough will help the cookies hold their shape and be a little more cakelike.

Besides your oven, you will also want to think about your cookie sheets. While your great great grandmother's thin sheet may hold sentimental value, buying a newer, insulated baking sheet will allow air movement and produce puffier cookies.

Standard semi-thick sheets will yield flat crisp cookies. Greasing your sheets will also help the cookies to spread, however you run the risk of cookies sticking to the sheet, so parchment paper may be a good investment for the serious cookie baker.

Do not be afraid to slightly underbake your cookies if you want cookies to be chewy. The edges can be slightly golden but the middle will look slightly raw.

Here are two new recipes from the Nissley family's cookie bake this year:

Guests Continue To Use Lincoln Highway 1940's Landmark

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MANNS CHOICE (Bedford Co.) — During the 1940s, Route 30, the Lincoln Highway, gave birth to tourist cabins. They offered security, hot showers, and radios. One of these establishments was the insulbrick covered cabins of the Lincoln Motor Court built in 1944.

Prior to the days of tourist cabins, travelers were forced to either do day trips, stay in expensive hotels located only in cities, or camp. The cabin was the perfect in-between solution and was the forerunner of today's Holiday Inn's and Howard Johnson's motels.

Thanks to Bob and Debbie Altizer, owners of the Lincoln Highway cabins, you can still have the experience of staying in one of these early 1940's accommodations.

Debbie and Bob have owned the cabins for 20 years.

"We wanted to own our own business," says Debbie. Living in Washington D.C., the young couple was anxious to get out of the city. So, taking a map, they drew a circle in a three-hour radius. One of these locations was Bedford County.

"We looked at motels and campgrounds and somehow these cabins had the magic draw," Debbie remembers. "And," she laughs, "I thought making beds would be easy."

Remodeling was the first priority upon taking ownership. "But, we were careful to keep them as original as possible," Debbie says. "Even in my youth, I realized the value of authenticity."

The knotty pine walls are original, as are the lampshades and doorknobs. "We have also kept as much of the furniture as possible," she adds.

Carpeting drapes, beds, and the heating systems all had to be replaced. "And then replaced again!"

The rooms are utilitarian. The bathroom still has the pink commodes and washbowls, and plastic tile typical of the era.

Gas heaters keep the cottages snuggly warm in the winter and the cool mountain breezes of Bedford County keep them cool in the summer.

"We have window fans," Debbie said, "and no one ever complains about being too warm."

While the Altizers are steadily busy throughout the year, Fall Foliage is the highlight.

"We start getting reservations about six months ahead," Debbie says. "And, we are always booked solid."

All of October is busy with leaf peekers enjoying the quaintness of the cabins. Deer hunters also seek the comfort of the Lincoln Highway Motor Court as do trout fishermen in the spring.

"We get a lot of families who like to do reunions renting several cabins," Debbie says.

Our most frequent guests are Lincoln Highway enthusiasts. The first organizational meeting of the association met at the cabins for dessert. There were 40 people in the group who enormously enjoyed the tour.

"We have all kinds of guests who come to celebrate their wedding anniversary, many of them had stayed here on their original honeymoon," Debbie said.

For occasions such as this, the Altizers offer a sweetheart room for $52 a night. The other rooms are $42 nightly.

The Lincoln Highway group plans to place a cutout of a couple dressed in 1940's garb outside the cabins for picture taking.

This is a natural for the Altizers. Both Bob and Debbie do wedding and portrait photography and have an outdoor setting at the cabins. Wedding couples sometimes use the cabins for their wedding parties.

Among the many guests who have checked in and out have been the helpers with the last Johnstown flood and an assortment of travel writers.

Lincoln Motor Court has been written up in USA Today, American Heritage, Travel Magazine, Budget Travel, local newspapers and the Altoona Mirror.

"The USA Today" article brought us visitors from everywhere," Debbie remembers. "We even had someone call from Hawaii.

During their 20 years at the cabins, the Altizers have raised two children.

And despite the good years they have had, they are now thinking of selling.

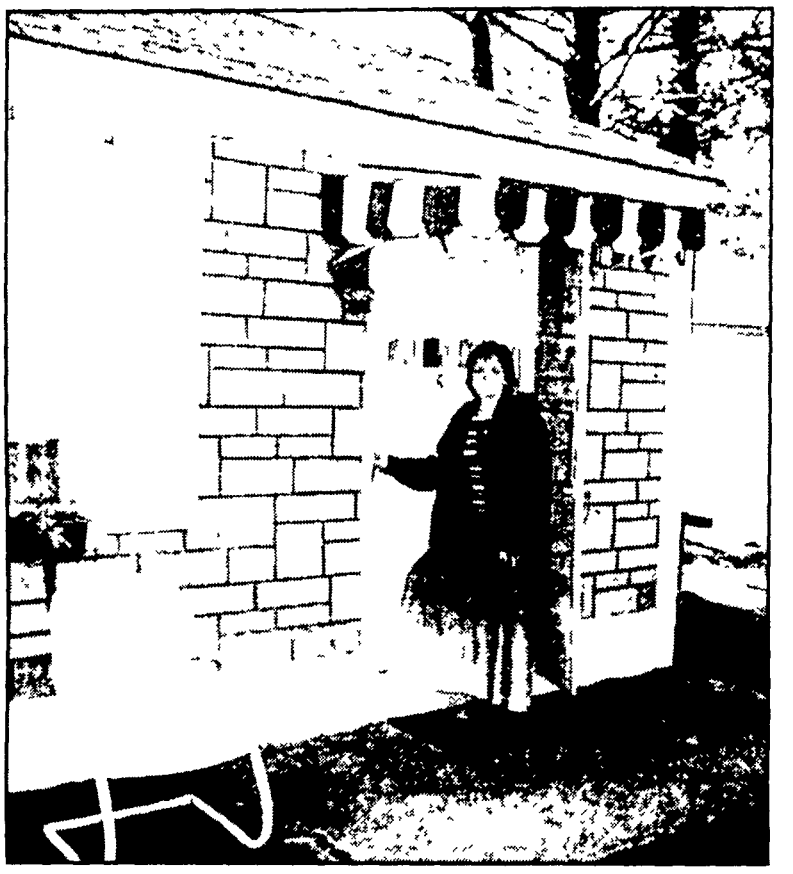
"I found cabins require a lot more work than making beds, and we think it would be nice to have more free time," Debbie said. "We also want more time to pursue our photography."

The cabins are located at 5104 Lincoln Highway, Manns Choice, Pa. 15554.

But, if you go looking for them, stay on Route 30 and you will find them neatly tucked on a hilltop between Bedford and Schellsburg.

The telephone number is (814) 733-2891.

Staying at the cabins will definitely provide a virtual reality step into the past.



Debbie Altizer checks on one of the insulbrick covered cottages, which retains its original 1940's appearance. The lawn furniture is also typical of that era. Staying at the cabins provide a virtual reality step into the past, especially for Lincoln Highway enthusiasts who remember that the cabins were forerunners of motels and affordable overnight lodging for travelers.

Decision Making

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Decisions can be tough. Some people breeze through the daily decisions — what to wear, dinner — but nearly everyone faces a big life moment when they simply can't make a decision.

The key? Breaking the decision-making process into small steps.

Step-by-Step

Follow these specific steps when you're faced with a tough decision.

• Identify the problem. What is the challenge? Write it down. You'll find that clearly identifying the problem is helpful when you're researching solutions.

• Gather information. First step: Get the facts about the problem and the options available. For example, if you're looking for a childcare provider, research all options in your area. What problems do you face getting a childcare provider? Is it cost? Location?

• Prioritize. What's important to you in terms of your problem? For example, if you're looking for an apartment, what matters most? Is it a sunny view? Do you want to live within walking distance to a store?

• Pros and Cons. Write down each option, then list the pros and cons. Your list of priorities will be helpful when you do this.

• Compare lists. Take a break and let all your work settle. Then, with a fresh eye, compare your pros and cons list with your priorities list. What do you find? Often, the answer will emerge.

• Make a decision. Now it's time to decide — and follow through. If you've thought about your decision in a systematic way, you'll feel confident you're doing the right thing.

Barley Soup

¾ cup pearl barley
2 pounds beef soup bone
½ cup diced celery
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup diced potatoes
Simmer barley in 2 cups water until tender.

Cook soup bone in water to cover until meat leaves bone. Remove bone from stock. Cook vegetables in one-quart beef stock until tender. Cut beef into bitesized pieces, add to celery mixture. Add barley. Add salt to taste. Simmer a short time.

Barley Soup

For the best flavor, use stock from country-cured hams, but not aged ones such as Smithfield, Kentucky, or Virginia.

Melt in skillet:
2 tablespoons salt pork
3 tablespoons shallots or onions

Cook onions in salt pork until translucent. Add:
½ cup barley

Shake the pan to coat the barley well in the hot fat. About five minutes later, add:
1 quart hot stock from the country cured ham

Cook the mixture, covered, until barley is tender, about 30 minutes. Stir in:
3 well beaten egg yolks
1 cup cream

Heat but do not boil after add the eggs and cream. Before serving, add or garnish with the following:
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
1 cup sauteed coarsely chopped mushrooms

To keep mushrooms white, add 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Cream Of Artichoke Soup

½ cup chopped green onion
2 carrots, peeled, chopped
2 ribs celery chopped
½ cup butter, divided
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon thyme
½ teaspoon oregano
4 cups chicken broth
4 ounces mushrooms, sliced
14-ounce can artichoke hearts, sliced
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup heavy cream

Using first part of butter, saute onion, carrot, and celery in large saucepan. Add seasonings, broth, mushrooms, and artichokes. Simmer 15 minutes. In small skillet, melt remaining butter, stir in flour, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Stir in artichoke mixture. Slowly add cream. Cook 5 minutes.

Serve small portions on special occasions, writes Shirley Orfanella.

Without Cookies?

¼ cup cocoa
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup unsalted butter at room temperature
¾ cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar
¼ cup sugar
2 large eggs
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
¼ cup milk chocolate chips
1 cup confectioner's sugar

Combine flour, cocoa, baking powder, and salt in medium bowl; set aside. Cream butter until smooth in large bowl with an electric mixer. Add the sugars and beat until combined. Add eggs and vanilla and mix thoroughly. Add flour mixture to egg mixture and mix until a soft dough forms. Add chocolate chips, cover dough with plastic wrap and chill for one hour or longer.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line two baking pans with parchment paper. Keeping dough well-chilled, shape one tablespoon dough in ball and roll ball in confectioner's sugar. Do not shake off excess sugar. Place balls two inches apart on prepared baking pans. Bake until cookies are puffed and cracked and are slightly firm to the touch, 8-10 minutes. Store in airtight container up to a week.

FESTIVE CHOCOLATE BARK

1 cup shelled pistachio nuts or almonds
12-ounce semisweet chocolate, chopped
8 ounces white chocolate, chopped
¼ cup dried sweetened cranberries

Microwave semisweet chocolate in a bowl, uncovered, 2-3 minutes, stirring once. Remove chocolate from microwave, stir until smooth. Melt white chocolate separately the same way. In a small bowl, combine nuts and cranberries, then stir half of them into semisweet chocolate.

Using a spatula, spread the mixture to about ½ inch thickness on a large cookie sheet. Drop the white chocolate by tablespoons over the dark. With the tip of a butter knife, swirl the chocolates together to create a marbled effect. Sprinkle on the rest of the nuts and berries. Refrigerate for about one hour until firm, then break into piece. Store up to a month.

Makes 1 ¼ pounds.

This article is written 10 days before Christmas while I'm still baking cookies and decorating the house. Yet you will be reading it after Christmas is over and decorations are being put away.

The past week has been one that had an entry on every day on the calendar. Allen has developed a new problem which demanded a visit to the doctor and then an early trip to the hospital for tests. I do not enjoy driving on busy highways at rush hour but some things have to be done.

There is always the weekly visits to the grocery store as we no longer have our own cows and chickens. So, milk, butter, and eggs, and lots of other things must be purchased at the store. At one time I would not have bought soup in tin cans. But, now it certainly is convenient for a meal for just two people. It is hard for me to remember how much food eight people consumed every day. Now when I invite a family to eat with us I must fill the kettles with food.

Three ladies in our community organized a Christmas party at one of their homes. There were about 25 ladies from a nearby development attending the gathering. They exchange "white elephant" gifts and had a lot of fun. We had name tags, which helped to identify each other. Many in the group were young women with children and they could relate to each other.

We are hoping for good weather on the 27th as we are planning an open house for our relatives. I was surprised that some of our children who live in Georgia told us that they might drive here on that day.

Children Harvest Seeds Of Truth, Hope Planted On The Farm

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Sections Staff

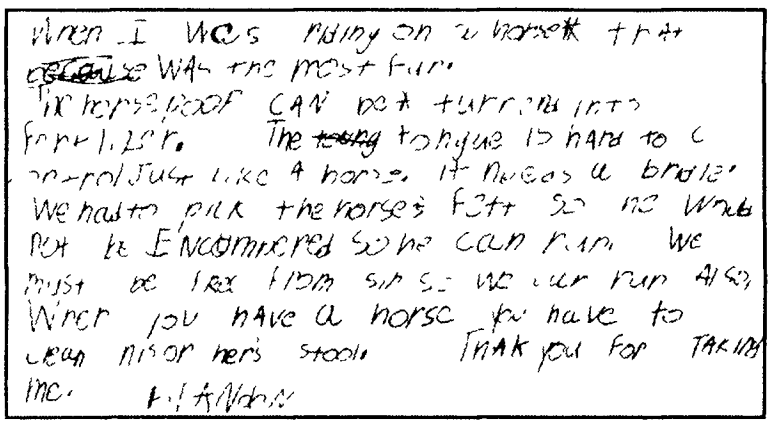
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Gregory Donough sees a farm as the best place for scriptural truth to take root and yield fruit in the hearts of homeless children and adults.

Donough, a welder for Case New Holland said the Bible is replete with references to agriculture — vineyards, shepherds and sheep, good or rocky soil, sowing and reaping, and the fruit of the Spirit....

With this in mind, for the past several years Donough has been gathering volunteers, funding, and advisors for the "Spiritual Fruit Farm."

Since June 2002, Donough and three farm family volunteers invite two inner city children to a farm for monthly visits.

At the farm, the children not only come into contact with agriculture but also meet and build relationships with caring adults. The children play games, read, milk cows, ride horses, muck out stalls and barns, or go fishing during the weekend.



When I was riding on a horse that was the most fun. The horse poop can be turned into fertilizer. The tongue is hard to c ontrol just like a horse. It needs a bridle. We have to pick the horse's feet so no one will be encouraged so he can run. We must be taught from sins so we can run also. When you have a horse you have to clean his or her stool. Thank you for taking me. Brandon Donough has many letters from the children who have enjoyed their weekend of learning at the farm.

Robert enjoys reeling in his first fish.

On the farm, Donough teaches object lessons in a unique way. For instance the children help with sowing and harvesting, preparing the meal in the kitchen, and tending the animals.

"The kids get to see how a healthy family functions," Donough said. This contrasts sharply with the harsh environment experienced by many homeless children.

In addition to watching a family unit, the students learn from several "object lesson stations" planned during the weekend.

After milking a cow, students discuss principles from Hebrews 5 about growing from "milk" to "solid food" in gaining discernment.

Waking the children at 4 a.m. to help milk is a valuable experience, explained Donough.

"It's grafted on their hearts forever — it's "udderly" impossible for them to forget," he said.

After milking the cows, Donough, the volunteers, and children spend time reading and discussing a passage to connect scripture with an experience.

"Later, when children buy milk at the store, what's going to pop into their heads? Donough asks.

He believes the on-farm experience and the scripture connection or at least the principle will be recalled."

Another object lesson station includes a fishing trip. For 8-year-old Robert, catching a few fish caused an adrenaline rush he will never forget, Donough said. The tugging on the end of Robert's fishing line also resulted in "plowing" his heart," or preparing him to be receptive to the Spiritual Fruit Farm's teaching.

Donough sits down with the kids to explain that "Jesus said, 'Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men,' and I help them work through what that means," he said.

The ministry vision, which Donough began working on in 1999, came as a result of study of the Bible, rather than agricultural background.

Through study Donough began to see how agriculture illustrated spiritual realities, and that through farming he could "take that which is physical to teach that which is spiritual," he said.

"Our heart needs to be plowed with praise and fertile with prayer," said Donough, who cites numerous scriptures dealing with cultivating the earth.

In I Cor. 3:9 the Bible states that "you are God's field," which is one of the foundations for Donough's idea to integrate the Bible and agriculture.

"Our hearts are that field and need to be powered with praise and fertile with prayer to accept the seed, that's the philsophy. Galatians 5:22 lists the fruits of the Spirit. I'm a spiritual fruit farmer and interested in cultivating that in the heart of children in a dynamic way," he said.

As he was studying and beginning to correlate agriculture and scripture, Donough was involved with children's ministry at Water Street Rescue Mission, and "in that room with 20 kids, some with behavioral problems, is what I'd call rocky soil," he said.

"My goal is to take them from that environment and put them in an environment where the soil is fertile," he said.

No behavior problems have been reported when the children are onl the farm.

"Everything is new and different and there are only two kids at a time," Donough said. "With just two children, I know where they're at psychologically and spiritually and can adapt the curriculum."

Although the ministry reaches only a small number of people, it is worth his time, Donough said.

"I believe this way is better than food stamps," he said.

For more information about the ministry and the planned phases, the website address is www.spiritualfruitfarm.org or call Donough at (717) 392-2421.

Even the compost heap yields object lessons. Here Donough explains how "mistakes" can become the most fertile soil for future growth.

Gary learns to ride a horse with Mary Stoltzfoos' help.

The Stoltzfoos family sits down to dinner with Spiritual Fruit Farm volunteers and students.

Snyder County Extension Conducts Annual Banquet

FREEBURG (Snyder Co.) - Snyder County 4-H and Penn State Cooperative Extension of Snyder County conducted a combined annual banquet on Nov. 13 at the Freeburg-Washington Community Center, more than 100 people attended.

During the evening guests were treated to vocal performances by Laura Connahan, member of the Rawhide Riders 4-H Club, and a presentation by Dieter Krieg, editor of Farmshine agricultural newspaper.

Current members and retiring members of the boards were recognized for their service to the organizations. Retiring members from the extension board included Earle Ferry, Morrill (Mac) Curtis, Pat Mitchell, R.T. Pecht, and Keith Roush. The following 4-H foundation members were also honored for their service: Amanda Beachel, Carol Hoffman, Ethel Ann Jones.

Elected to the Snyder County Cooperative Extension Association were Roger Lauver, Georgiann Skinner, Ruthann Walters, and Karen Burch Elected to a 3 year term on the 4-H Foundation as adult directors were Mary Aurand, Barry Sands, and Christopher Swineford. The following teens were elected to serve a one year term on the 4-H Foundation; April Beaver, Amanda Hauck, and Dawn Heimbach.

Each year Extension recognizes a person(s) or business in the community who has demonstrated a tremendous amount of support for the Extension and 4-H. William Hauser, assistant superintendent of the Midd-West School District was recognized with the Outstanding Achievement Award for his strong support of extension's "Healthy Schools" program within the district.

This year's recipient of the Friend of 4-H Award is Jerry Valentine, who has consistently supported the Snyder County 4-H program for many years, primarily through the Snyder County Youth Livestock Sale conducted annually at the Beaver Fair.

Each year Jerry purchases livestock project animals from 4-H members at a premium price. Without fail, he donates one of the market hogs he has purchased to be auctioned again, this time with all the proceeds going to the Snyder County 4-H program.

Jerry's support has played a vital part in the purchase of many items for the 4-H program. The Snyder County 4-H Foundation is very pleased to honor Jerry Valentine for his outstanding support and dedication to the Snyder County 4-H program.

4-H volunteers and leaders were also recognized for their years of service. Volunteers received certificates and/or pins for years of dedication to the program.

Christopher Swineford and Carolyn Shirk of Swineford National Bank, and Dawn Marie and Scott West of Big Country Radio presented the Snyder County 4- H Program with a monetary donation from funds raised during this years Scooper Bowl. New Jersey 4-H'ers Attend National Congress

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — For 79 years, National 4-H Congress has hosted youth from the United States and its territories in a youth leadership development conference, this year taking place in Atlanta, Georgia, November 28 through December 2.

The program combined a variety of sessions, seminars, discussion groups, and a service learning experience for the delegates. The nation's most outstanding community leaders, speakers, and educators presented current and timely information, providing the youth, ages 14-19, with a quality, educational and cross-cultural experience designed to address the needs and issues of youth.

Twenty-three 4-H teens from New Jersey participated including the following from Hunterdon County. Lindsay Dehartchuck, Alexandria Township, and Mary Hefferner, Raritan Township.

The theme, "Growing Into the Future," focused on environmental awareness. Awesome educational programs were developed for the conference including a variety of fun and exciting recreational and networking opportunities. A cultural evening was added this year where youth were engaged in a variety of forms of the arts. The delegates were exposed to many venues in the city including the Centennial Olympic Park, The World of Coca-Cola, CNN Center, the Carter Presidential Library, and the Martin Luther King Center.

Each year a community service project is planned and last year's collection of dimes for Habitat for Humanity International was tremendously successful. The collection for Habitat once again was included this year, collecting over $10,000. This year, in cooperation with the local Habitat for Humanity Chapter, they began the process of building the "Clover House," which will always be known as the "House that 4-H Built!"

New Jersey 4-H'ers and agents who attended the National 4-H Congress, back row from left, Tara Pawchak, Morris County; Bev Hahn, Morris County; Marilu Randolf, Hunterdon County; Lillian Shupe, Hunterdon County; Dan Mundy, Hunterdon County; Shelly Damiano, Atlantic County; Judy Knehr, Ocean County; and Macy Compton, State 4-H program coordinator, New Brunswick. State Team Competes In 4-H National Wildlife Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — From the green, tree-covered hills of Pennsylvania, four 4-H youth journeyed to New Mexico to compete recently in the 2003 4-H National Wildlife Habitat Evaluation Contest in the hot, flat Chihuahuan Desert.

To win a spot on the Keystone State team, the youth placed among the top four at the state contest held last spring. This year, three of the four team members were from McKean County: Lisa Dunkerton, Sunny Frey and Bethany Kibble are all members of the 4-H Sewing Suzies, Junior Outdoorsmen and McKean County Council. The fourth team member was senior Katie Brunecz of Warren County. Ann Dunkerton of McKean County and Pam Snook of Clinton County were the team coaches who accompanied the girls.

As Pennsylvania was experiencing a summer of torrential rains, the girls learned about management of livestock and wildlife where there is little or no rainfall. Contestants individually judged the suitability of habitat for wildlife species through on-site evaluation and aerial photographs. As teams, they wrote urban and rural wildlife management plans for nine different wildlife species.

The Pennsylvania team placed 10th overall, with a strong showing in its rural management plan. Alabama's team placed first, followed by Virginia and Georgia. Following the contest, participants enjoyed a trip to White Sands National Monument and a gondola ride/hike on Sierra Blanca (11,400 feet above sea level) near Ruidoso, N.M.

The national contest is sponsored by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, International Paper, the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation and the National Rifle Association. The Pennsylvania Game Commission paid travel costs for the Pennsylvania team and the Pennsylvania Outdoor Writers Association also contributed to defray team members' expenses.

Adams County 4-Her At Egg Conference

Summer Chronister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Chronister, Dillsburg, represented Adams County and Pennsylvania at the National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference in Louisville, Ky. Summer is one of five 4-H members from Pennsylvania who were selected to attend the 2003 Conference.

Summer is a member of the York Springs 4-H Club, Adams County 4-H Beef Club, and Adams County 4-H Senate. She currently is President of her local 4-H club. Summer was a camp counselor, County 4-H Ambassador, and involved on several committees in Senate.

4-H Programs Preparing New Beef Producers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's answer to the widely asked question, "Where's the beef?" can be found in Penn State Cooperative Extension 4-H livestock clubs, which teach youth skills needed to become beef producers. More than 1,700 young people participated in such clubs last year.

Participants, who are all between the ages of 8 and 18, raise cattle from calves and learn about everything from feeding, diets, veterinary care and birthing to grooming and showing animals at fairs.

"There is no better way to prepare for becoming a beef producer than taking part in the 4-H programs," says Bob Mikesell, 4-H livestock program specialist. "The youngsters are exposed to every aspect of the business."

4-H beef cattle programs provide kids with different experiences tailored to their circumstances. "You don't have to live on a farm to participate," says Mikesell, "but you do need access to farm facilities. Some projects require more resources than others, but none are backyard projects."

Phil Hoy, cooperative extension youth program coordinator, notes that although 4-H offers many different types of projects to enhance the lives of both rural and urban youth, animal projects remain tremendously popular.

"Raising beef cattle takes a higher initial investment and a bigger commitment of time and resources than some other animal projects because more space and more farm facilities are needed," he says, "but the returns — in terms of education and career preparation — are also significant."

The Market Steer Project program boasts the most participants — 1,468 last year — among 4-H beef programs. Youths purchase calves in mid- to late-fall and feed, care for and groom the steers in preparation for showing and selling them at county fairs and round-ups the following summer.

Penn State's detailed, step-by-step reference guide for the 4-H Market Steer Project leads first-time participants through selecting a project animal, caring for the steer and keeping it healthy, grooming it and showing it.

"This project mirrors the commercial beef industry fairly closely," says Mikesell. "What the industry does with hundreds or thousands of head of cattle, a 4-H'er does with one, two or three."

In the Breeding Beef Project, youths select heifer calves and raise them to breeding age. Then they have the heifers bred and oversee the birth of a new calf. "They start their own little beef herd," says Mikesell.

"Kids in the heifer project can show at beef breed exhibitions, as well as local fairs and state sponsored shows," he adds. "They also learn about reproductive health programs, calving management and artificial insemination."

The third 4-H beef program, the Dairy Beef Feeder Calf Project, offers a way for kids growing up on or around dairy farms to experience beef production by using bull calves. More than 200 youngsters took part last year.

"Pennsylvania's dairy industry produces many bull calves, few of which are needed for breeding purposes," explains Mikesell. "Most dairy bull calves are destined for veal or beef production."

As a result, 4-H youths can buy week-old dairy bull calves at a lower price than they could purchase 500 to 600 pound beef calves. "The kids teach the calves to eat grain and have them castrated into steers," says Mikesell. "Dairy-type steers are not eligible for certified beef programs such as Certified Angus Beef, and they have to be fed a very concentrated diet to make them suitable for slaughter, but when fed correctly, dairy steers can produce acceptable-quality beef."

For more information about 4-H, contact your Penn State Cooperative Extension county office, or visit pa4H.cas.psu.edu on the World Wide Web.

The Maryland 4-H Dairy Quiz Bowl Team placed second overall in the 4-H Invitational Dairy Bowl Competition at the North American International Livestock Exposition, Nov. 8. Shown here (from left) are the team members and their coach: Amanda Kilby, Cecil County; Caitlyn Trout, Frederick County; Davis Schwartzbeck, Carroll County; Jonathan Saunders, Carroll County; and April Hall, coach, Cecil County.

Lancaster Farming Celebrates 10 Years Of Corn Talk

'Founders' Marvel At The Changes In Decade Since

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — One corn industry specialist noted the many mergers and bankruptcies over the years. Another points to the working interrelationships with science and industry.

Still another believes in the changes that have taken place in selection of corn for certain specific traits, whether they are improved feed performance or resistance to pests.

Yet all three corn experts believe that in the 10 years since Lancaster Farming first published Corn Talk (Feb. 13, 1993) a newsletter of the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association (PCGA) the industry has seen some major changes.

Corn industry experts gathered at the annual Penn State Ag Progress Days in August this year to talk about the industry in the past 10 years.

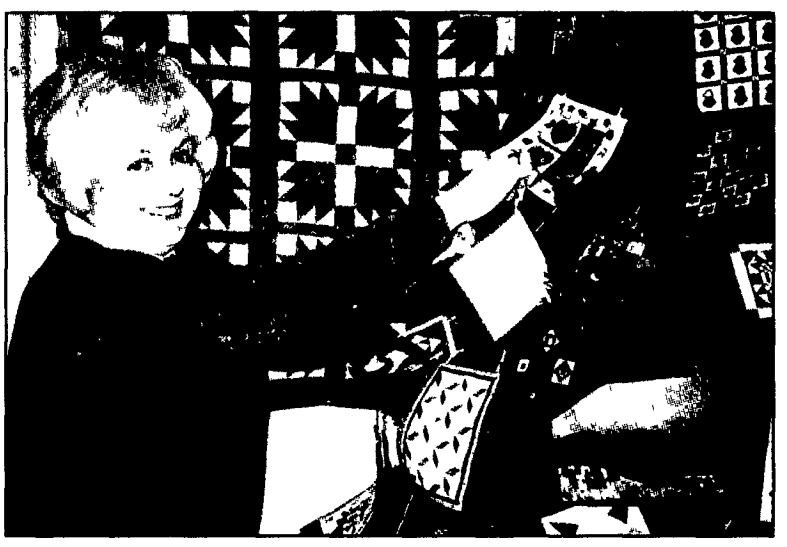
GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. — The Virginia Quilt Museum, 301 South Main St., has a way of putting visitors "in stitches" around its unique Christmas tree.

The pine needles may not be real, but the seasonal tribute of a Christmas tree is embraced around and around by miniature quilts. The quilt donations came from all over Virginia. Now, on the encircling jute clothesline they are suspended by tiny clothespins.

Museum director, Joan Knight, said when visitors see the unique decorating idea, interested persons — even non-Virginians — ask if they can make a quilt, too. To date 106 mini quilts are on the tree but others are on the way.

The Virginia state flower is represented by the white dogwood wreath that encircles the tiptop like a halo. And the state bird, taking a lofty view of things at the very peak, is a replica of a red cardinal.



Joan Knight, director of the Virginia Quilt Museum, Harrisonburg, takes a great amount of pride in her responsibility of overseeing the daily operation of the eight-year old facility that runs three large exhibits a year with a pleasing mix of vintage and contemporary pieces.

Close up of a side column. Two columns flank a full mirror at a large mahogany fireplace. A Cupid is at the base of each column. Dubbed "Pat and Mike," they once were the perfect spot for hanging stockings when the museum building was a private dwelling for the Sipe family.

Knight says the wee quilts represent every section of Virginia. Patterns range from Sunbonnet Sue and Betty Boop with redwork embroidery, to Amish, white on white (whole cloth), YoYo, crazy quilt, fan, pinwheel, flying geese, cathedral window, A Shenandoah Valley postcard scene, star patterns, hand-stenciling, and applique.

"One of the things that is so popular today," Knight said, pointing to a Christmas quilt with fancy additions, "is embellishments."

Embellishments might be buttons, beads, little pearls or metallic threads.

After the 2000 Virginia State Legislature passed a resolution making the four-year-old Virginia Quilt Museum the "Official Quilt Museum of the Commonwealth of Virginia," quilters in Northern Virginia encouraged the museum to launch the Christmas tree quilt project, Knight said.

The invitation to participate went into a newsletter, along with a stipulation about sizes. Six by eight inches was the maximum, and two by three inches, the minimum.

Knight reports that in the U.S. only seven quilt museums exist. The nearest locations are in Kentucky and New England.

"We started it (the quilt museum) so Virginia quilts could be preserved for future generations."

Knight explained the procedure for other quilt donations. Now and then a family member will approach the museum with a quilt donation they want preserved.

'We don't take every quilt that is offered," she said, "but we do like to fill in the blanks (patterns not preserved previously)."

The request is reviewed by the committee which makes its decision based the criteria of the quilt's condition, if the pattern is one the museum needs, and if the quilt's history is significant.

"Quilting was an artistic outlet," Knight said, alluding to hand-stitching that most women of bygone days did at some time or other. She said it's still true, even when a machine is used to create a quilt.

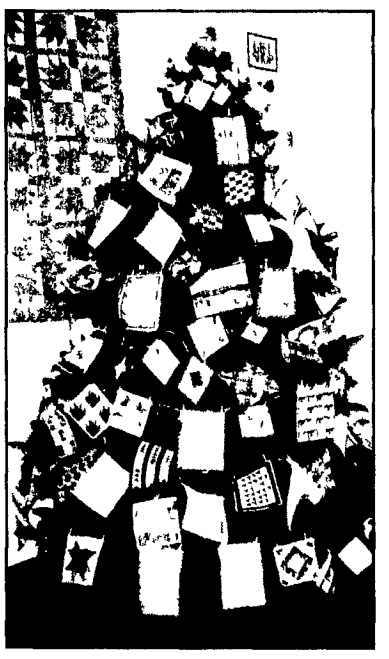
Knight said that if machines to quilt had been available to women then, they would have certainly used them.

The house that is home to the museum has some impressive features that inspire the streak of creativity in those who enter it. The inlaid floors are notable. Many a quilter departs with an unspoken goal to recreate the pattern in her needlework. Likewise, the intricate design in the heavy cast iron radiators that are painted white.

If you want to preserve a quilt, heirloom or not, forget the plastic bag. Knight says putting a quilt in plastic is a mistake. The natural fibers cannot breathe.

"The best thing is to put it in an old pillow case," she said. Go to a thrift shop and buy a large pillow case if you have none at home.

"The other thing is take it out every six months and refold it."



The gaily decorated Christmas tree in the Virginia Quilt Museum boasts an inventory of 106 original miniature quilts. The squares were designed, crafted and donated by persons from all over the state. Mini clothespins hold them suspended on jute clothesline. Jute clothesline comes in links and can be folded up for easy storage. Some patterns displayed are Betty Boop with red embroidery, Sunbonnet Sue, YoYo, crazy quilt, fan quilt, pinwheel, flying geese, Cathedral window, stars, Amish, hand-stenciled, and applique.

Mariann Simmons is pictured with the notable log cabin miniature quilt, which required about 10 hours to stitch together the 12 one-inch blocks, each containing 13 strips.

That is, vary the fold lines on a regular schedule.

The second mistake owners make is to allow the valuable piece to be touched by the warm, bright rays of sunshine. Not only will fading occur but the heat will damage and disintegrate the fibers.

Lighting in the museum is adjusted to the correct level for textiles. Additionally, behind the curtains and draperies a filtering plexiglass offers protection from the sun's ultra-violet rays at the big windows.

The Virginia Quilt Museum in located in a house that Colonel E.T.H. Warren built in 1856. Warren, a lawyer, was killed while serving in the Civil War. The high-ceilinged dwelling was built as a wedding present for his wife.

In 1894, George Sipe, who was a lawyer also, became the owner. He added the a big addition at the rear and a pair of mahogany fireplaces with glazed tiles.

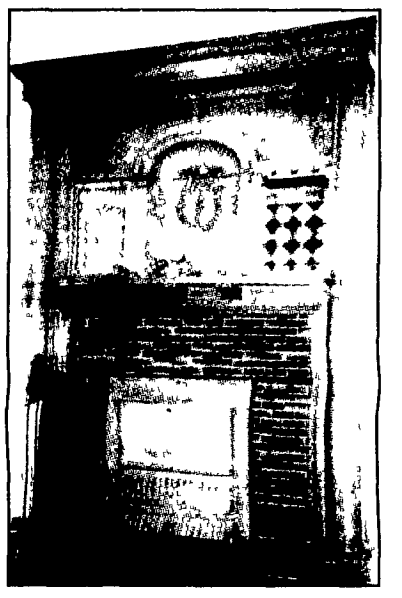
The historic residence eventually became city property, but in the year 2000, Harrisonburg officials turned over the real estate and made it a gift to the Virginia Quilt Museum.

With the support of grants and admission fees, the building has had extensive renovations completed. Rotting floor joists at ground level were removed and the thick concrete was poured underneath to satisfy current building code requirements.Volunteer and board member Vaughn Simmons said that despite termite destruction, he saw in his mind's eye, a lovely future for the floor planks and decrepit joists. Where feasible, he not only salvaged pieces of the original wood, but restored and incorporated them brilliantly in the decor.

The current "Time-Span" (new quilts from old tops by Becky Herdle) exhibit will continue through March 29.

Next year the Quilt Museum schedule includes the following: Apr. 3-June 28 — Time-Squared: Art Quilts by the Manhattan Quilters Guild; June through mid-Oct. — Art Quilts From the Fringe Benefit Quilters of Southwest Va.; Mid-Oct.- Feb. 2005 — Quilts Made by Men.

In 2005 expect to see "Memories by the Sackful," which will feature old feed bags.



In the less imposing of two mahogany fireplaces two small mirrors reflect quilts in the current "Time-Span Quilts," exhibit of pieces produced by Becky Herdle of Connecticut.

This Christmas stocking quilt made by Ann Lahr of Annandale, Northern Va., is an example of applique and embellishments.

Exhibits that are always featured are Vintage Quilts From the Museum Collection," and "Women of the Civil War Era."

Operating hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Sunday: 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Closed Tues., Wed., major holidays and between exhibitions.

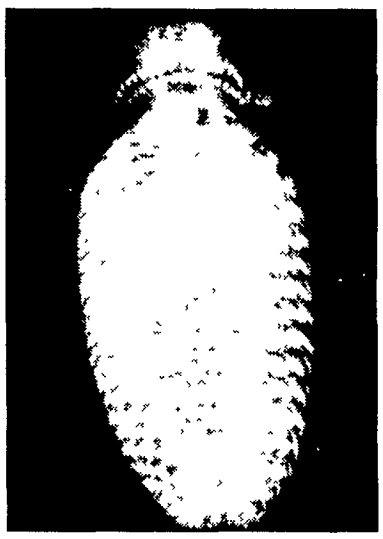
Scent Bottle Artistry Dates To Antiquity

Old scent bottles may be small but they pack a big beauty wallop.

For many of today's beginning collectors, it is 20th century perfume bottles that are catching their attention.

However, past generations were captivated by the craftsmanship and history of early scent bottles, often to Roman antiquity. Various auction prices offer some surprises. Many of the more recent bottles can be priced much higher than ancient examples.



English nailsea glass snuff bottle, 19th century. Photo credit: Private collection.

Prices depend on many factors from the name of the maker to quality of material and artistic techniques.

Over the centuries the original purposes of scented oils have varied from early use in religious and funerary ceremonies to aphrodisiacs. Or, as a coverup for lack of personal cleanliness. Their shapes and the materials used have also changed. From the 16th century on, when made by talented artists and craftsmen they can be classified as miniature works of art. The size range is usually from 2½x4 inches.

Over the years, during excavations, examples have been found dating back to ancient Egyptian bombs and Roman times. Egyptian bottles imitated the forms of Greek ceramic pieces: tubular and globular. As a status symbol of the nobility, they were worn on the wrist from a cord. These days, many collectors wear them around their necks as medallions.

By the late 16th century perfume-making became an important business in Europe. Not only jewelers, but goldsmiths, glassmakers and ceramic factories created some of the finest scent bottles ever made. France and Germany made bottles of colored glass.

In Italy the scent bottles followed the style of Venetian glass. However, by the 118th century glass scent bottles were out of fashion. The English Bristol factories, with their translucent blue glass replaced them, as did English porcelain factories such as Bow, Chelsea, and Worcester. They decorated the bottles with Chinoiserie and often in elaborate figural forms.

At the same time in late 18th century America, small scent bottles were being made by the Stiegel Manheim Glass Works in Pennsylvania. They were free-blown and pattern-molded in a wide range of colors. Some figural forms included hearts and seahorses.

The Boston and Sandwich Glass Company made great quantities of scent bottles from the mid 19th century, as did the Pittsburgh Glass House.

19th century English scent bottles were made using the newly popular cameo glass.

There was a revival of nailsea (glass with white or color swirls). Copies of German enamelware were also made in England by Bliston in Staffordshire. In France and italy millefiori (many flowers) were created. Popular exports from Bohemia were ruby and flashed glass, often combined with floral, enamel motifs.

Over the years the tops were of both metal and glass.

By the end of the 19th century there were new types and styles. In the early 20th century they were replaced by perfume bottles. Gall'e, Lalique and Tiffany scent bottles can sell in the thousands of dollars these days.

CLUES: Surprisingly there are many examples of old Roman glass scent bottles, often faked. Authentic ones are light weight. Fakes are heavy. They have been been fluoresced to show the iridescence associated with antiquity glass. However, the faked iridescence will have an even pattern.

If you are interested, keep track of prices for various makers and materials in such price guides as Miller's International Professional Handbook.

OSU Ecologist Aims To Restore Riparian Buffers

WOOSTER, Ohio — Riparian buffers, borders of plant life along waterways, are good for the water and also the land.

They filter runoff and take out pollutants before those pollutants foul streams and groundwater.

And they stabilize river banks, give homes to wildlife, and make streams cooler and cleaner for fish.

Experts promote them, and more people build them, but how do riparian buffers work? And how can new buffers be built even better?

That's what Charles Goebel hopes to learn and share with farmers and foresters.

Goebel, an Ohio State University forest ecologist based on the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's (OARDC) Wooster campus, studies Ohio's riparian areas to see what grows there, how they function and the best ways to restore them. Many of those areas have been harmed by development.

The aim of Goebel's work: new, effective riparian plantings ideally including native trees such as sycamores, cottonwoods and, yes, Ohio buckeyes specially designed for and adapted to the state.

Typically, revamped riparian buffers, especially those on farms, are seeded with non-native, cool-season grasses, which are relatively easy to establish and care for.

But they aren't what used to grow on the land and may or may not be the best choice.

Trees, shrubs and warm-season grasses, native and well-adapted, may be better.

Goebel wants to know. Planting and design recommendations, rooted in his research, will follow.

"We know from other states how effective grass buffers are at filtering sediment and nutrients from runoff," Goebel said. "But for Ohio we really don't know the specifics, and part of my research is to get that information so we can start to mix and match different management options."

The goal, Goebel said, is to find the best combination for a farmer's particular situation — practices that when put together help both the farm and nearby waters.

At the same time, Goebel and his co-researchers are developing "suites of reference conditions" — detailed profiles — as to how the state's riparian areas looked 200 years ago. Most were heavily wooded. But exactly what trees grew there and how they were distributed hasn't been fully documented.

"It's impossible to restore things to how they they were 200 years ago," Goebel said. "Forests are always changing. But we can try to direct (riparian) areas onto a successional trajectory that mimics those conditions and restores the functional processes. That's what we're after."

Lancaster Farming Celebrates 10 Years Of Corn Talk

'Founders' Marvel At The Changes In Decade Since

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) – One corn industry specialist noted the many mergers and bankruptcies over the years. Another points to the working interrelationships with science and industry.

Still another believes in the changes that have taken place in selection of corn for certain specific traits, whether they are improved feed performance or resistance to pests.

Yet all three corn experts believe that in the 10 years since Lancaster Farming first published Corn Talk (Feb. 13, 1993) a newsletter of the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association (PCGA) the industry has seen some major changes.

Corn industry experts gathered at the annual Penn State Ag Progress Days in August this year to talk about the industry in the past 10 years.

TEN YEARS OF CHANGE IN CORN PRODUCTION

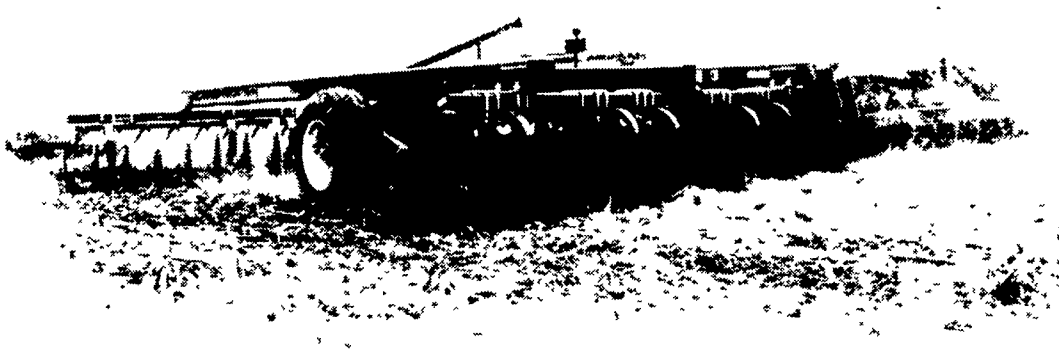
Defining Disc Performance

Genetically modified hybrids and higher yields create residue management challenges. Hoober offers Krause disc harrows in three agronomic classes to size and incorporate residue, improve soil tilth and provide quicker soil warm-up in the spring – all key factors in maximizing yield potential.



CLASS I
Seed Bed Finishing
(Models – 7300 Series, 2200 Series)
- 100-140 Lbs. per Blade ~ 22" Blades
- Moderate crop residue management
- High speed tillage/leveling

CLASS II
All-Purpose
(Models – 7400 Series, 4995)
- 140-210 Lbs. per Blade ~ 22" or 24" Blades
- Primary tillage or seed bed finishing
- Heavy crop residue management

CLASS III
Primary Tillage
(Models – 2400 Series)
- 210-250 Lbs. per Blade ~ 24" or 26" Blades
- Primary tillage / extreme conditions
- Heavy crop residue management
- Excellent finishing disc

Field-Pro II-500 Gallon Sprayer

All New 500 Gallon Sprayer Introduced By Bestway

HIAWATHA, Kan. — The all new Field-Pro II-500 Gallon Sprayer from Bestway is the result of listening to customer requests for a mid-size sprayer with many of the conveniences and performance of the much larger Field-Pro III models in the Bestway line-up.

The 500-gallon capacity teamed with the time-tested X-Fold™ Boom provides high performance in an affordable on-farm sprayer. Ideally suited for reduced tillage situations, the Field-Pro II-500 was specifically designed for operation in the most challenging no-till conditions.

The frame features a pull-from-axle design, providing a direct structural link between drawbar and axle. Other features include:

- The 60-foot X-Fold™ Boom is controlled by an in-cab mounted joystick that provides power to all boom functions. A three-function hydraulic control lifts and folds the wings as well as lifting the entire boom. The boom only requires one hydraulic outlet.
- Large 500 gallon tank capacity features full length tank sparge to assure complete mixing, even with suspensions.
- MKR-5000D Foam Marker features a large 19 gallon non-pressurized tank and will deliver up to 6 GPM (23 LPM) for a clear mark in high residue.
- The hitch can be configured as either a double clevis or single "Perfect Hitch."
- Every part of the frame features a superior powder coat finish results in long-term protection.

An optional Chemical Inductor System will load both liquid and dry materials into the system through the pressure side of the pump and directly back into the main tank

New Holland's TN-A Utility Tractors Matched To Jobs

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Whether faced with the demands of landscaping, municipal maintenance work, turf management or farm chores, there's a New Holland TN-A utility tractor built for the job.

New Holland's versatile 45- to 62-PTO hp TN-A tractors are packed with work-saving features that increase productivity for all types of operations. A wide variety of transmission, hydraulic and axle configurations permits owners to match a TN-A tractor to their specific needs.

Economy TN-A utility tractors are available in 2WD or FWD, and have an 8 × 8 constant-mesh transmission with a synchronized forward/reverse shuttle, ideal for front-end loader operations. A 12.4 gpm hydraulic pump supplies oil flow for up to three remote valves and the three-point hitch.

When equipped with a front-end loader, an optional joystick-controlled, mid-mount valve is available. A 23-gallon fuel tank has ample capacity for a long day's work.

These tractors are equipped with an easily engaged, independent 540-rpm PTO. The three-point hitch has a huge lift capacity of 3,960 pounds and features telescoping stabilizers and fixed or flexible link ends for easy implement hook-up.

For a more versatile transmission — or more powerful hydraulics — consider one of the standard TN-A utility tractors. They have all the features of the economy TN-A's, but offer a 12 × 12 fully synchronized transmission with synchronized forward/reverse shuttle, or a 16 × 16 synchronized transmission with a wet-clutch power shuttle. The forward/reverse shuttle control for the 16 × 16 is on the steering column for easy fingertip operation.

Increased hydraulic flow is available by ordering the 16.9 gpm hydraulic pump. (It comes standard with the 16 × 16 power shuttle transmission and all TN75A models.)

TNS-A models feature one of the most innovative features of New Holland tractors — the SuperSteer™ front axle. This axle offers a tight 76-degree turning angle — the best in the industry — and saves time during every turn. They also feature a Traction Management System that automatically engages and disengages FWD only when it's needed, improving traction, saving fuel, and extending tire life.

TNS-A tractors are available with a foldable ROPS and steps on both sides of the platform. Electronic instrument panel, tilt and telescoping steering column, deluxe seat and a 19.5-gallon fuel tank are standard equipment. A deluxe cab version of the TNS-A tractor is also available.

Servicing is easy with combined engine oil fill/check, battery and engine air cleaner in front of the radiator and one-point hydraulic/transmission oil check/fill. The hood pivots open on an assist-strut. There are no side panels to remove.

Syngenta Seeds Recognized With Quality Management Certification

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Syngenta Seeds has announced that it has successfully achieved renewal of its ISO 9001 registration.

Additionally, the added achievement of ISO 9001:2000 standard registration assures that quality systems are in place for not only the supply processes, but also the quality assurance, parent seed and customer support processes, as well as the overall management of NK® Brand corn hybrids and soybean, alfalfa, and wheat varieties.

The Syngenta Seeds supply management team first achieved ISO certification in 1998 and has received favorable reviews by third party audits every six months since.

"Our supply management team has done an exemplary job managing the overall production and handling of NK Brand seed products," said Albin Hubscher, head, corn, and oil seeds, North America, Syngenta Seeds.

ISO 9001 is a collection of standards for quality management, quality assurance, and continuing improvements that have been adopted by countries around the world. The International Organization for Standardization (ISO) is a non-governmental organization established in 1947 and is the world's largest developer of voluntary technical standards.

New Holland's Boomer™ Tractor Family Now Complete

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The New Holland family of Boomer™ compact tractors has grown to include three new Class .05 sub-compact models and two new, higher horsepower Class IV utility models.

New Holland now offers a complete group of 14 Boomer models from 18 to 55 gross engine horsepower.

All models feature new styling and new halogen headlights and corner work lights that offer best-in-class lighting. The entire Boomer line can now be equipped with new, curved boom loaders that are designed specifically for Boomer tractors.

Stylish design and sharp fit and finish have always been the hallmarks of Boomer tractors. The design combination of the sloped hood and underhood muffler give these tractors attractive styling and superior visibility compared to competitive models.

Curved-boom front-end loaders are now available for all models in the Boomer family. These front-end loaders are designed by New Holland specifically for use with New Holland Boomer tractors, and feature a unique curved boom design that allows the operator to see the edge of the bucket and the entire work site. The curved boom design provides greater strength and less weight and mass than "dog-leg" loader booms offered with competitive tractors. They also provide excellent forward visibility to make loader work faster, easier, and safer.

The loader can be removed as needed without tools. The Quick-Latch™ system allows the operator to unlatch the loader from the tractor seat and simply back away. A skid-steer style quick-attach plate is available on the new utility models for easy mounting of loader attachments.

A wide variety of implements are available for the full line of Boomer tractors including a new line of front quick-attach brooms, snowblowers, and blades. These implements can be attached or removed in minutes without the need for tools.

Many Boomer models are available in a "Turf Special" configuration designed specifically for quality turf care.

"Turf Special" tractors come equipped with special turf tires and feature the productivity-enhancing combination of New Holland's exclusive tight-turning, turf-friendly SuperSteer™ front axle and SensiTrak™ clutch.

Kit Available For Select Deere Grain Drills

MOLINE, Ill. — The new John Deere electronic population rate-control (EPRC) kit — available for select John Deere grain drills — offers on-the-go rate adjustment and enhanced seed-metering accuracy.

The infinitely variable system provides a more consistent and repeatable metering rate for more productive and profitable seeding.

The EPRC kit comes standard on the 1590 No-Till Drill, and can be fitted to 1560 and 1565 Drills. A toggle switch in the handgrip easily adjusts rates up and down, eliminating handles previously used to manually set rates. A hand crank also is installed for manual adjustment if electronic failure occurs.

The kit monitors and changes population when used in conjunction with seed sensors and either a ComputerTrak™ or SeedStar™ monitor.

"Achieving better population control and reducing seed cost is on the goal of every producer," said Marc Porter, product line manager, John Deere Parts and Service Marketing. "The EPRC kit is a cost-effective, reliable tool that adjusts and monitors seeds easily and accurately for higher overall field performance."

Top-Ranking Sires Enter Active-A.I.

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — Three sires have graduated into the Select sires lineup, all entering active-A.I. service near the top of the Production-Type Index lists for their respective breeds. This follows the quarterly publishing of the dairy sire evaluations by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, InterBull and dairy breed associations.

Representing the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, and Guernsey breeds, these individuals are transmitting a balance of production and type traits that will make them popular mating sires throughout the world.

Producers can obtain additional details about these three new graduates into active-A.I. service a well as up-to-date production and type data on all 38 high-components-breeds sires in Select's lineup from a single source — www.selectsires.com.

Thanks Pork Producers For Bringing Home The Bacon!

Proceedings Available From Roundtable In Swine Diseases

ROCHESTER, Minn. — Diseases such as Porcine Reproductive and Respiratory Syndrome (PRRS) and Mycoplasma are costing pork producers across the nation through declines in farrowing rates, decreased total born, increased stillborns, weaker born pigs, and decreased growth rates. Recently, a group of swine specialists gathered to discuss confronting these production concerns by closing herds to outside animals.

During the Allen D. Leman Swine Conference, a veterinary roundtable was held to discuss the economic and production aspects of using a Closed Herd System.

The proceedings featured discussions by noted swine specialists such as Scott Bailey, reproductive services manager for the Hostetter Management Company in Ephrata; Tom Gillespie, DVM, owner of Rensselaer Swine Services in Rensselaer, Ind.; Darwin Kohler, DVM, technical services director for Babcock Genetics, Inc. in Rochester, Minn.; Steve Olson, DVM, Austin Veterinary Clinic in Austin, Minn.; Brian Schantz, DVM, co-owner of Diversified Management Company in Laurel, Neb.; and Tom Wetzell, DVM, partner at South Central Veterinary Associates in Wells, Minn.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II is excellent for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM is ideal for houses.

CAN ALSO BE PICKED UP OR DELIVERED FROM LEBANON PLANT

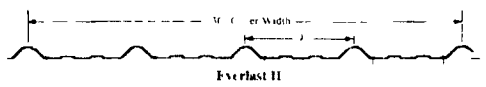
Everlast Roofing, Inc. Metal Roofing & Siding

The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"

1 Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2 Epoxy Primer
3 Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4 G-100 Zinc Coating
5 Full Hard Steel (80 000 min yield)
6 Heat formed less paint cracks



Everlast II

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$48.32 PER SQUARE
$1.53 PER LINEAL FT.

You must hear what Brad says:

Brad Turley with Simba his horse, 7.8 Farms, Killingworth, CT

"I couldn't be more pleased with my riding arena!

(And my neighbors are talking, too!)"

I knew what I wanted and I found it! After extensive research I knew I needed a fabric structure from We Cover The facts that made my decision were

"The Engineering - when I saw their heavy built trusses

"The Lighting - I can ride my horse in the natural light

"The Design The building is designed like a building should be

"The Ventilation The side curtains excellent air movement

My local building codes [illegible] approved the way the natural light enters [illegible] traditional [illegible]

"I recommend you call We Cover today!"

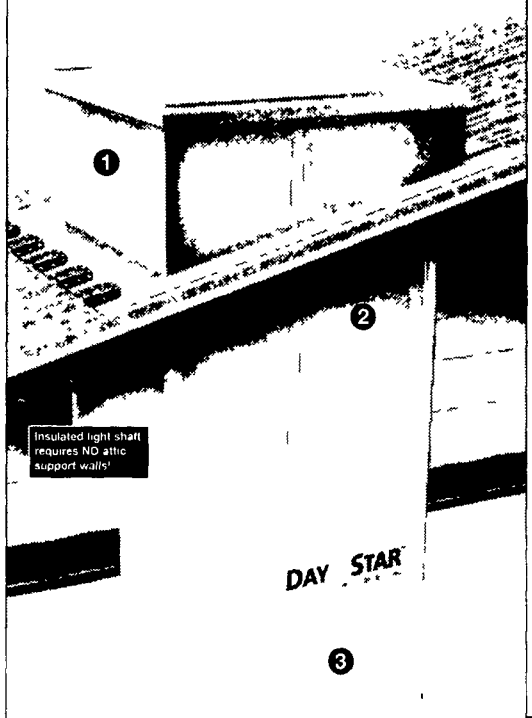
A Breakthrough in Natural Lighting

The right skylighting system can cut a building's energy costs while creating a more pleasant environment, replacing harsh artificial light with full-spectrum natural sunlight.

With DayStar, natural lighting is brighter and more cost-effective than ever before Specially designed DayStar systems amplify sunlight and diffuse it throughout the room, filling it with brilliant natural light even on cloudy days! DayStar s advanced design is available in 4'x4', 2'x4' and 2'x2' sizes, fits most any roof pitch or roof type, and provides far more light than standard skylights And DayStar systems have a minimal effect on the building's temperature so savings on electricity won't be wasted on increased cooling costs Easily installed in both residential and commercial structures, such as shops, offices, retail stores, showrooms, paint rooms, warehouses homes and more



HOW IT WORKS

Sunlight is gathered with a specially designed inverted parabolic dome Its rays are amplified by the ultra reflective lining of the light chamber When the sunlight reaches the ceiling lens, the highly concentrated light is diffused in a heart shaped pattern by side light panels

1 ROOF CURBS
Insulated roof curbs are made of galvanized steel with continuously welded watertight seams

2 LIGHT SHAFT
Our light shaft is designed to maximize daylight to your space using an insulated sandwich panel with a highly reflective interior

3 CEILING LENS
Extra deep pan design allows light to spread sideways and reflect down from the ceiling
Choose from full spectrum lenses for lighting similar to outdoor sunshine or standard white lenses for soft white light

Improving soils - naturally!
21% calcium - 17% Sulfate
Gypsum is a soil conditioner, amendment & fertilizer
USAGypsum
Want better soil, deeper water infiltration and healthier root systems?
- pH neutral source of calcium 100% more soluble than lime
- Provides Sulfur in sulfate form - The form plant roots can absorb
- Loosens heavy clay & compacted soils - lets air & water penetrate
- Reduces erosion on slopes and soils with poor structure
- Reduces nutritional tie-up & makes NP&K more available
- Improves acid soils especially when co-used with lime
- Prepare soil for no-till Unlike lime, which must be incorporated into the soil and come in contact with soil acids to be released, gypsum supplies a constant supply of soluble calcium to the soil
- Improves fruit & produce quality & reduces some plant disease
